Tour the USPTO

Thursday, June 18, 2009 tour at
SLA Annual Conference
8:30 am – 4:30 pm

Take the mystery out of the patent process while viewing some of the earliest US patent items/inventions. We'll start the day with a buffet breakfast at the Conference Center. Martin Finston, Alcatel-Lucent patent attorney, will provide an overview of the patent process and how Information Professionals can add value to their customers during this process. Attendees will then take a bus to the USPTO in Alexandria, VA, where USPTO personnel will detail the process for a patent application submitted to the USPTO through approval or rejection. Attendees will be on their own for lunch in the USPTO cafeteria or Old Town (recommendations will be provided). The USPTO museum and gift shop will be open during lunch. The afternoon will include tours of the main USPTO library, a choice of Technology Centers, and the Public Search space.

Register via the SLA Annual Conference form.

Ticket price: $25
