Science Today in Verse

Hope Leman, Samaritan Health Services

I am feeling somewhat blue
`Cause seals are dying of the flu
That is sad and what is more
It's of a type not seen before
And with Ebola you must make Efforts never hands to shake
And always keep oneself quite clean
Or find yourself in quarantine
Turbines near the habitats
Of various kinds of birds and bats
Have an effect on birds adverse
(And that on bats is even worse)
Drug users, shows evidence,
Have screwed-up brains, which does make sense
Patterns of wounds and injuries
Studied now for centuries
Suggest humankind has not
Been as kind as we had thought
Life appears to have been quite dull
Without a break to smash a skull
A new drug has made some mice
Thinner, which is very nice
But may not get to you or me
For going on eternity
It is more probable than not
For cops not to notice pot
As preoccupied, they tend to think
You are speeding due to drink
Bowhead whales sing like birds
Wake me up when they use words❖
