

June 1995

Editor's Column

Mary E. Donovan, MD

Thomas Jefferson University Hospital

Follow this and additional works at: <http://jdc.jefferson.edu/jeffjpsychiatry>

 Part of the Psychiatry Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you

Recommended Citation

Donovan, MD, Mary E. (1995) "Editor's Column," Jefferson Journal of Psychiatry: Vol. 12 : Iss. 2 , Article 2.
Available at: <http://jdc.jefferson.edu/jeffjpsychiatry/vol12/iss2/2>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Jefferson Digital Commons. The Jefferson Digital Commons is a service of Thomas Jefferson University's Center for Teaching and Learning \(CTL\). The Commons is a showcase for Jefferson books and journals, peer-reviewed scholarly publications, unique historical collections from the University archives, and teaching tools. The Jefferson Digital Commons allows researchers and interested readers anywhere in the world to learn about and keep up to date with Jefferson scholarship. This article has been accepted for inclusion in Jefferson Journal of Psychiatry by an authorized administrator of the Jefferson Digital Commons. For more information, please contact: JeffersonDigitalCommons@jefferson.edu.

Editor's Column

"Sometimes a cigar is just a cigar." Others had learned, "My son, sometimes a cigar is just a good smoke." Like many of our colleagues, we believed that these were Freud's words during a question and answer session after a lecture he gave at Clark University. The words were comforting in a way, giving us a chance to chalk at least some things up to pure coincidence, thus releasing us from relentless unconscious agendas and hidden sexual interpretations.

When we initially reviewed Dr. Zafar Ibrahim's article, "Sometimes a Cigar is Just a Cigar," for this edition of The Journal, we returned it to him and suggested that if he was going to quote Sigmund Freud he needed to cite the proper reference. He therefore undertook a literature search to find documentation of the well known quotation. He asked local analysts. He called the New York Psychoanalytic Institute. He called the archivist at Clark University. He even called the librarian at the Sigmund Freud Society in Austria! But his enthusiasm and persistence failed to reward him with any documentation that Freud ever said, "Sometimes a cigar is just a cigar."

Lydia Marinelli at the Freud Society in Austria went through the complete English Standard Edition of Sigmund Freud's works, and was kind enough to note the only two cigar references she found:

"... and as the gentlemen are already smoking, the cigar-smoke sticks in my memory (Vol II, p 120)."

"The most dainty morsels of food are thrust into its mouth, delicacies of all kinds and even cigars (Vol. XIII, p. 37)."

Nevertheless, without implying that Freud actually said it, the popular phrase makes a fitting title for Dr. Ibrahim's article in this edition of the Journal. And don't stop reading—we present excellent and informative articles in this issue written by other equally enthusiastic and persistent authors.

We thought you would enjoy our short story of editorial adventure. If anyone is aware of documentation of the phrase popularly attributed to Freud, let us know!

Mary E. Donovan, M.D.
Chief Editor