2011

Inside Out, Spring 2011

Follow this and additional works at: <https://jdc.jefferson.edu/insideout>

Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons, and the Medicine and Health Sciences Commons

Let us know how access to this document benefits you

Recommended Citation

(2011) "Inside Out, Spring 2011," Inside Out: Vol. 1 , Article 1.

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.29046/IO.001>

Available at: <https://jdc.jefferson.edu/insideout/vol1/iss1/1>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Jefferson Digital Commons. The Jefferson Digital Commons is a service of Thomas Jefferson University's Center for Teaching and Learning \(CTL\). The Commons is a showcase for Jefferson books and journals, peer-reviewed scholarly publications, unique historical collections from the University archives, and teaching tools. The Jefferson Digital Commons allows researchers and interested readers anywhere in the world to learn about and keep up to date with Jefferson scholarship. This article has been accepted for inclusion in Inside Out by an authorized administrator of the Jefferson Digital Commons. For more information, please contact: JeffersonDigitalCommons@jefferson.edu.

Inside Out

Spring 2011

INSIDE OUT

JeffArts Literary Magazine
Spring 2011

Editor-in-Chief
Jennifer Lewis

Production Manager
Alexander Brothers

Assistant Production Managers
Christine Chen
Aivi Nguyen
To Dung Nguyen

Editors
Anna Escuder
Andi Frankenburger
Nona Lu
Mara Modest
Khalid Mohamood

Faculty Moderator
Dr. Michael J. Vergare

The Jefferson Arts organization was founded primarily to offer Jefferson students the opportunity to express themselves through art. The Jefferson Arts organization focuses on such media as art & photography, writing, and music, and supports diverse activities including live readings, art exhibits and musical performances. In addition, the organization publishes Inside Out, an annual art and literary journal which showcases photography, paintings and sketches, short stories, poems and essays contributed by Jefferson students. All of these activities are designed to bring more diversity to the Jefferson community; to allow students, faculty and staff the chance to stop and reflect on their daily lives; and to provide a creative outlet from the rigors of school and work.

Foreword

Why make time for the arts?

Inside Out gives us a glimpse of the creative work that goes on day to day at Thomas Jefferson University. The media employed are diverse, but the artists represented in this journal share a common spirit that values creativity and self-expression. While our students enrich themselves by these pursuits, they also enrich our campus lives by sharing them with us.

Michael J. Vergare, MD
Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs
Thomas Jefferson University
July, 2011

Submission Information

Submissions may be emailed to Dorissa.Bolinski@jefferson.edu. Photographic submissions should be saved in a .jpeg file using the best resolution possible. Artwork should be photographed from a direct angle, without glare or visible background, and saved in the same manner as photographs. All submissions will be reviewed anonymously; not all submissions will be printed. Please note that entries will be judged as submitted; Inside Out will not crop, sharpen or otherwise adjust an improperly-saved graphic submission.

Manuscripts (prose, poetry, translations, short plays, etc.) should be submitted in a Word-compatible document, and saved under the name of the piece (or “untitled,” if applicable).

All submissions MUST be accompanied by a separate cover letter document containing the following:

- Author or artist’s name
- Email address and local phone number
- College, department or undergraduate program and year in school
- Genre and title of each submission

Inside Out does not publish anonymous submissions, resubmissions or previously published works. Further submission inquiries may be addressed to JeffersonArts@jefferson.edu.

Contents

Winter Boardwalk	Heather Tattersall	1
Boundaries	Kanani Titchen	2
Nightline	To Dung Nguyen	4
Blue Jeans	Bonnie Bennet	5
After the Genocide, Rwanda	Christine Chen	6
Trails	Matt Richards	7
Various Facades	Subhasree Basu	8
On Our Mistakes, and Physics	Khalid Mohamood	9
Valle Sagrado	Lara Murphy	11
Pink Study	Han Koon Ooi	12
Passage, Rites	Jennifer Lewis	13
Layers	Mara Modest	15
Heather Tattersall	Aivi Nguyen	16
Pulse	Christina Furia	17
Penmanship	Christina Nguyen	18
Small Jeffersonians	Francina Girard	19
 Growing Up In Guatemala	 Christine Chen	 Front Cover
Lady Watering	Aimee J. Lee	Inside Front Cover
Singed	Matt Richards	Inside Back Cover
Lubert	Daniel Gealy	Back Cover

Heather Tattersall

Boundaries

Kanani Titchen

These white walls keep the world out lock me in should be punched... and often...
by me.
by my doctors.
by my nurses.
Walls are boundaries,
frustratingly safe
but safe.

These white coats
keep the illusion alive hem me in should be washed... more often...
by me.
by my classmates.
by our tears.
Coats are confines, unfortunate necessities
but necessary?

These white lies keep the public at ease

do me in should be uncovered... but aren't...
by me.
by you.
by Joe Patient.
Lies are comfort,
carefully polished.
But, careful...

To Dung Nguyen

Blue jeans

Bonnie Bennett

A light mist of rain rests on the windshield.
A cool summer breeze dances with my lazy hand hanging out of the window.
Crickets sing along to Dylan's sweet songs
as we ride the deep blue night.

Christine Chen

Matt Richards

Subhasree Basu

On Our Mistakes, and Physics

Khalid Mohamood

As I write this, there's an unfinished Whopper on my desk next to my laptop. I eye the Whopper, it eyes me back. That burger has been sitting there for a few days now. And being the medical tech that I am, I can tell you what types of bacteria have grown on it and the relative count of each.

On the far side the desk, two little spike-like objects project upward from beyond the edge. A cockroach's antennae. For the sake of this note, I'll name it roachie, no capitalization. Cockroaches don't have a sense of self, so it would be a waste of energy hitting that Caps Lock key.

roachie brings one leg up the edge, hesitantly waits, and then pulls it back. No sudden movements, the large human is clearly not noticing roachie. Seems like the coast is clear.

Clearly smelling the burger, roachie swiftly moves toward it. Our juxtaposition in regards to the burger is such that there is a 60deg separation between roachie and me. I quickly estimate the speed at which roachie is moving, and, using physics, calculate the time it will take for it to arrive at the site of Burgergeddon.

Around the Whopper lie the remains of countless brave cockroaches. All of them tried to get a piece of that burger, and all of them died in the attempt. Some died on the first encounter with the sole of my flip-flops, while others managed to valiantly hold on to dear life, at least for a couple of seconds while I swung again at them.

Seeing the dead carcasses of millions and millions of its brethren did not deter roachie in the least. If anything, it seemed to actually spur it on toward reaching that long-rotten Whopper. I could literally see its small brain chugging away, compiling and evaluating each and every dead cockroach's circumstance. Roach

#1 had died because it went towards the burger in a straight line, while #2 tried to dodge the flip flop, but lost precious momentum while doing so. Roach #3 timed his approach during the wee hours of the night, in the hope that the large human might be dozing off and a little loose in his defenses, but to no avail.

roachie noted all these attempts, and devised a plan that was guaranteed to help it pass my flip flop.

But, inexorably, my calculations were impeccable, my aim was true, I factored my vectors correctly, and plopped poor roachie on the head. One more dead dead roach.

Moral of the story: There is no better teacher than our own mistakes, and death is as inescapable as a law in physics.

Lara Murphy

Han Koon Ooi

Passage, Rites

Jennifer Lewis

The ides of August are steeped in pungent city smells, days of thunder but no rain, and hours of dissection.
Teach us what it means to know a body from the inside-out. We the untried sawbones, soft-pedaled our task—sought to euphemize her as a vessel, wrecked and yawing with mute limbs across the table. We plumbed limits of fascia and sinew, unearthed caches of arcane facts. We sounded the measure of her secrets with the lead of a scalpel, three months long.

Treasure hunt, jigsaw puzzle,
she was each of these: roadmap to practice, to surgical wards, to the rest of the patients
we will ever touch.

So why, fourteen months later, the foreignness of David, recumbent in a suit I'd never seen before, a light wool the color of heron wings? Gone were the suspenders & ball cap and the little notebooks he kept in his front shirt pocket. His face looked good.

But the composure of his folded hands sent me reeling, back to the first day of lab, where she waited, wrists crossed and held together with red yarn.
Now she was in the casket, flaps of torso ajar and the heart just visible in the center of her chest.
And I grieved for both of them, for the suffering of life's end and the indignity of what comes next.

Mara Modest

Aivi Nguyen

Pulse

Christina Furia

Music...
It's the symphony of her soul
And makes her feel whole
Inside
Her tympanic membranes where all the sound is processed
Is so much static.
All she hears is constant chatter, doubting drums
Sounding slowly that haunt her once happy dreams.
She looks outside to the waking world, asking the skies
A thousand whys.
Inside
The deep walls of her chest where she is all sewn together
Is a song that sounds, soothing her soul.
It plays through the chambers of her heart, composing itself.
For every percussion is a beat granted, keeping her alive like the air
She breathes.
Don't try to stop it for she will surely flat line.
Inside
She knows only she can make the voices cease and the pulse Continue beating.
Give her one chance to make the song in her heart heard.
Her dreams, like the bow of a viola in your hand that waits to Slide soothingly across the strings of its instrument.
Look into her broken brown eyes; they beg you to hear the pulse,
Inside.

Christina Nguyen

Francina Girard

Contributors

Subhasree Basu: Jefferson College of Graduate Studies, 2012.

Bonnie Bennett: Jefferson School of Health Professions, 2012.

Christine Chen: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Christina Furia: Jefferson School of Nursing, 2012.

Daniel Gealy: Jefferson Medical College, 2014.

Francina Girard: Jefferson School of Health Practitioners, General Studies, 2012.

Aimee J. Lee: Jefferson Medical College, 2011.

Jennifer Lewis: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Mara Modest: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Khalid Mohamood: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Lara Murphy: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Aivi Nguyen: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Christina Nguyen: Jefferson Medical College, 2014.

To Dung Nguyen: Jefferson Medical College, 2012.

Han Koon Ooi: Jefferson School of Health Professions, Radiologic Science, 2011.

Matt Richards: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Heather Tattersall: Jefferson School of Health Professions, Occupational Therapy, 2011.

Kanani Titchen: Jefferson Medical College, 2013.

Acknowledgements

Inside Out appreciates the kind support of:

Dorissa Bolinski, Editor/Designer, Jefferson Medical College

Kim Graham, Assistant Director, Activities Office and Bookstore

Patti Haas, Director, Activities Office and Bookstore, Thomas Jefferson University

Michael J. Vergare, MD, Senior Vice President, Academic Affairs, Thomas Jefferson University, Chairman, Department of Psychiatry and Human Behavior