SELECTING A TARGET JOURNAL

Unsure where to submit your next manuscript for publication? Try JournalGuide.com, a free tool that gives you a simple way to identify target journals. You can use your manuscript title, abstract, or keywords to find journals that have published articles on similar topics. The database also provides details on individual journals, including where they are indexed, publication fees (if any), and average time from submission to decision and publication. For more information, visit FAQ page.

TEACHING AND COMMUNICATION SKILLS

Registration is now open for workshops from the Center for Teaching and Learning. Topics include active teaching and learning, assessment, communications skills, and course transformation and redesign. View the Fall catalog and register here. Participants who attend workshops in one of the six new workshop tracks can earn a Center for Teaching and Learning micro-credential. Details are available here.

WRITING CAFÉ

Writing Café is open every Friday in October from 9am-11am: Writing Café is a quiet space where writers can gather to work on individual writing projects. It is located in room 200A of Scott Library. Drop in anytime and stay as long as you like. All you need to bring is your laptop (or just a pad of paper).
