Tuesday December 1, 2020 6:30 pm - Applied Research Methods Conference

All Strategic Leadership and Complex Systems Leadership students, faculty, alumni, and guests are invited to the DSL 702 and 706 Fall Applied Research Methods Conference.

At this virtual conference held via Zoom, DSL 702 Applied Research Methods I students will present their research study proposals and DSL 706 Applied Research Methods II students will present the findings of their executed pilot studies.

The investigations of these scholar-practitioners cover a diverse range of topics including consequences of moving from face-to-face to virtual sales meetings at a large multinational corporation and exploring the subjective experiences of Black female veterans with military sexual trauma and their post-traumatic resilience.

Support your colleagues and offer feedback about their applied research by attending the conference on Tuesday December 1 from 6:30 pm - 9:30 pm via the Zoom link:

Monthly Complexity Webinars

All Strategic Leadership and Complex Systems Leadership students, faculty, alumni, and guests are invited to watch the Webinars from Percipient Partners available on YouTube involving Larry M. Starr, John Pourdehnad and Scott Koerwer.

The most recent was November 10 in which a discussion based on the paper, Managing in Extreme Uncertainty by Patrick Finn, Mihir Mysore and Ophelia Usher (2020), was held between Larry M. Starr, John Pourdehnad and Scott Koerwer to address sensemaking and decision-making in an “edge of chaos” environment where traditional frameworks fail.
