Women's History Month Lecture Series: Judy Wicks Doing Well While Doing Good: How Business Can Serve Community

Judy Wicks is owner and founder of Philadelphia's 24-year-old White Dog Café, and is a national leader in the local, living economies movement. She is co-founder and co-chair of the national Business Alliance for Local Living Economies (BALLE), and founder of the Sustainable Business Network of Greater Philadelphia (SBN). She is also president of the White Dog Café Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to building a local living economy in the Philadelphia Region.

With a four-part mission of serving customers, community, employees, and the natural environment, the White Dog Café has created numerous educational and community-building programs which focus on topics such as economic and social justice, environmental protection, peace and non-violence, drug policy reform and community arts.

Lecture, Networking Evening and Reception

All members of the Jefferson community are invited to this special event celebrating Women's History Month. The evening will begin with a lecture by researcher, Kristin Bachman, on the portrayal of women in medical texts from 1750 to 1950. Following the lecture, attendees will have the chance to discuss some of the important issues pertinent to women in the health sciences with members of the Jefferson faculty.
