Dear Bro[ther] John

Here we are, fattening up like a pig on Indian corn Aunt Green says I look better, & I think so too, indeed I think I am getting quite handsome.

Farming goes in here about as usual, planting and harvesting rather late. We are now having a long rainy spell which hurts the grain I feel a little. Our haying is likely to hold on (on acct of this weather until the 1st Sept[embe]r if not longer I shall be with you about the 1st proc. I am apprehensive. Cultivate the whiskers (which by the way Cousin Martha says are getting to be quite extensive.) I tell Bro. William I think he will have to knock under to you on whiskerandres [whiskerandos] I hear the die is at last struck & you are to pull in your horns i.e. retrench - have you opened the Medical Office in Broadway yet? I hope practice will roll in like a flood i.e. if for the best - I say if for the best, because you know prosperity hurts some people, and on the other hand affliction ~~or in another~~ or penury may be the means of great good to a person -

Are you driving it over in Cherry St. now - or do you intend standing on your "own bottom" -

Last Saturday we boys went swimming as we have several times, and I learned to swim about a rod -

Put me in mind when I come, to tell you about neighbour Gibbs' trade of horses up in Hampshire -

William & I have done some buddling, he takes pay in young trees when they get going -

I don't want to compose more now, so goodbye all well yr very affec. bro J
