

Philly N' Me

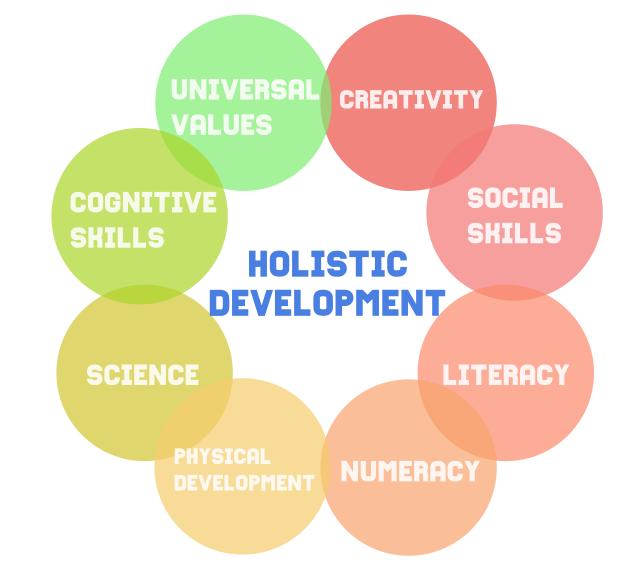

a holistic approach to student development

MISSION STATEMENT:

Our purpose was to increase the awareness of education opportunities, for the under-privileged youth in the city Philadelphia. To do this, we have created a program which uses our holistic approach, focusing on creating a well-rounded student.

After taking an aptitude test students will be given many different options for extra curricular activities that will help each student to have a well rounded high school experience.

During each Friday night lock—in, students will check in with their counselors and receive help with their homework, and get one—on—one tutoring. Once their academic is out of the way, they are able to play the night away or until 11p.m.

Students will receive points for every Friday Night Lock—In that they attend, and the top five students with the most points will be able to choose between tickets to a sports game or a concert.

Earn a degree and go to college!!!!

Michael Griffith, Thomas Jefferson University; Mackenzie Malcolm, Thomas Jefferson University; Hannah Fitzpatrick, University of Ulster; Chi Hoo Hwang, Yonsei University; Christopher Cherestal, Pace University