A RED ROSE FOR KATHERINE

A red rose and a Jefferson pin were presented to Katherine Fleck when she received her Diploma from the School of Nursing in May 1928.

A red rose, her Jefferson pin and Jefferson cap were by Katherine Sauder's side through the period of rest and during the services on July 6th, 1971. This was a special tribute to Katherine's devotion to nursing. The family's floral arrangement was made of red roses.

Those of us who were closely associated with Katherine know that she led a life of service. She had been active in the Private Duty Nurses Organization from 1928 to 1930. During World War II she was Supervisor of Nurses at the former Bellevue Hospital, Camden, N. J. At the time of her death she was President of the Alumnae Association of the School of Nursing, Thomas Jefferson Hospital and was active in Private Duty Nursing.

She was a member of the Haddonfield Visiting Nurse Association, the New Jersey Parent-Teachers Association, recording secretary of the Erton Parent-Teachers Association, and treasurer of the Goodwill Class, Haddonfield Methodist Church Sunday School.

Wife of the late Howard George Saunders, she is survived by a son, John W., and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Katherine Curwick.

A red rose for Katherine Fleck Saunders.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Graduates:

Be concerned — become involved!

I wish all of the over 2700 living graduate nurses of Jefferson could have been present May 1st for our Annual Luncheon.

The weather cooperated beautifully. The attendance was excellent. The general spirit of the girls was one of much happiness. The food was hot and appetizing. The "speeches" were short and very concise. The Annual Giving to date has been most gratifying and your generosity is much appreciated.

But — we need your interest and presence more than once a year. If you are not a member of our alumnae association, why not join? The cost is minimal and the benefits are large! We have regular meetings at 7:00 P.M., the second Tuesday of the months of September, October, November, January, February, April and May. These meetings are held in the Student Nurses Residence. They are not dull, but are lively with discussions and we do have programs. Also, in December we have a Christmas dinner with an exchange of gifts and a dinner in March followed by an auction of donated articles. These dinners for the past three years have been held in the beautiful Jefferson Mall.

And so — Graduates and Alumnae Members — lend a small amount of active interest — become concerned and I am sure that you will become involved.

I want to express my thanks to all and especially to my Board of Directors and Committee Chairmen for all their kindness and help during the past two years.

DEVELOPMENT AND PROGRESS
OF JEFFERSON 1970-1971

As Jefferson completed the first year and moved forward into her second year in a University status, there has been a concomitant expansion and improvement of patient care facilities and services.

The Cardiac Care Unit, under construction at the time of the last report, was completed and ready for patients in February. While coronary care units are not new, Jefferson's is unique in that it provides specialized facilities for patients who have had cardiac surgery, as well as for those with medical cardiac problems. The unit is bright and attractive and is furnished with most modern monitoring equipment so that any change in a patient's condition may be instantly detected and corrective treatment established promptly. Needless to say, the medical, nursing and supportive staffs are especially trained for this type of patient care.

The long-awaited reconstruction of the nurseries on the 10th Floor, Foerderer Pavilion, became a reality in May. Four adjoining, but separate nurseries are located at the south end of the floor. The glass-walled walls of the nurseries and of the treatment room and nurses' station afford visual control of all activities within the suite. New locker facilities for the nurses assigned to this unit, a basinet washing room, increased work space for physicians and nurses have improved the functional use of this unit. The rooms are bright and cheerful and the decor is attractive, making this a pleasant, as well as a convenient place to work.

These plans and construction have taken nearly two years to complete, since every detailed change required the approval of the Philadelphia Department of Health.

Similar, but even more extensive plans have just been approved for the renovations of the Intensive Care and Precordial Nursery located on the 9th Floor, Main Building. We hope that this reconstruction may begin shortly after the beginning of next year.

We are gradually moving toward the ultimate goal of rationalizing all maternity and infant care facilities so that, eventually, the maternity service beds and nurseries on the north side of the 4th Floor, Main Building, may be moved to the 10th Floor of the same building. These plans do not take the time, and adequate funding is difficult in these times.

An even more exciting venture is taking place now as construction of a helipad on top of the Foerderer Pavilion is underway. Permission for this construction was granted by national, state, and local government agencies.

The helipad will enable us to provide prompt medical treatment and support of high risk and premature infants by means of rapid transportation from other institutions which may not have the physical facilities nor the specialized professional staff to care for these babies. Jefferson, under the direction of Dr. Mary Louise Sweeny, is a regional center for the care of premature and high risk infants. We are presently caring for such babies, some of whom are born at Jefferson and others who are transferred from more than twenty hospitals along the eastern seaboard.

Transportation by ambulance or car over crowded highways can make the difference between life and death or irreversible damage. Concurrent with the need to transport infants with special problems is the need to provide rapid transportation for accident victims and for those with acute conditions requiring immediate medical care.

Plans to establish a Burn-Trauma Unit at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital are in the discussion stages now. There is only one such unit in Pennsylvania, in Pittsburgh, and the other ones closest to this area are in Virginia and Massachusetts. In an urban setting such as one with vast industrial complexes, and a network of highways, the establishment of such a unit is of utmost importance.

The development and planning for a Hand Surgery Reconstruction and Rehabilitation Center is also underway. The purpose of this center will be to focus the best knowledge and experience on the comprehensive care of those patients whose hands and upper extremities have been injured by injury or disease. Under the leadership of Dr. James Hunter, Jefferson is now the only institution in this area which can adequately manage the severe emergencies of the hand and upper extremities.

As a result of all of these accomplishments and plans, Jefferson is one of the four hospitals in Philadelphia being considered by the Hospital Survey Committee in the proposal to build a Burn-Trauma Unit. We hope we may be able to report progress in this venture in the near future.

In all of these exciting accomplishments, our Women's Board has assumed a key role. Support has come through the ladies' enthusiasm, dedication, and belief in Jefferson. In these days of budgetary crises, we would not have been able to renovate the nurseries or to construct a helipad without the financial support of the Women's Board. Over the past five years, they have raised and contributed $46,000 for the renovation of the 6th Floor, Main Building; $40,000 for the 5th Floor, Main Building; $46,000 for the term nurseries; and have pledged $50,000 for the Burn-Trauma Unit.

The Seventh Annual Old Market Fair was held at Head House, 2nd and Pine Streets in May, and was a huge success.

Beyond the Hospital's walls, the University has realized further accomplishments. The Scott Library and Administration Building was completed and opened in October. This beautiful building provides impressively furnished offices for the President and Vice Presidents, as well as for some other key officers who serve all segments of the University.
DORIS E. BOWMAN

Our school has had an average enrollment of 210 for the year. Ninety-one students were admitted in September 1970. We continue to utilize all possible recruitment efforts in order to attract qualified students. Our Board of Trustees has been most concerned because of the small number of black students enrolled in the school. Our admission policies are not discriminatory except for the fact that we have certain admission criteria which we feel must be maintained if we are to continue a school of high quality, with National accreditation. We are among the 80% of schools with this distinction. Legal (State) authority to operate our school also requires that we maintain our high standards for admission as well as high levels of achievement for safe health care.

During the summer of 1970, we presented a remedial program for a group of ten disadvantaged students in an effort to assist them in becoming qualified to be admitted into the school. Two were admitted in September 1970 and both, for personal reasons, left within a week. Another remedial program is planned for this year, beginning June 28 and lasting for six weeks. We expect to have a group of fifteen students and, hopefully, will be able to bring at least some of them up to our admission criteria.

The State Board of Nurse Examiners in January approved our proposal that our program be reduced from 36 to 33 months. Therefore, beginning with the class to graduate in 1972, the program is 33 months.

We have given college credit for the courses in sociology and psychology for the past two years and are considering including the basic sciences for credit with the class to be admitted in September 1971. The major problem in granting college credit is the added cost to an already very costly program.
School of Practical Nursing

ANNUAL REPORT TO THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

The School of Practical Nursing continues to recruit students desire and qualify for a vocational nursing program. Most candidates find it possible to attend full time for twelve months, but others continue to be interested in the pilot program approved by the State Board of Nursing to present the curriculum as a work-study plan requiring twenty-one months to complete. Seven members of the class group who inaugurated this program in September 1969 will be granted diplomas this June.

Our Practical Nursing program can now count 157 graduates, one of whom is a man. As in the case with a number of our graduates he intends to enter a school of professional nursing in September 1971 in a climb up the career ladder. The open ended curriculum in nursing is being actively promoted throughout the State of Pennsylvania and will no doubt vitally affect the College of Allied Health Sciences as it develops here at Jefferson.

Elizabeth J. Sweeney
Director

CARDIAC CARE UNIT

As of February 15, 1971 Thomas Jefferson University Hospital has provided a Cardiac Care Unit for the patients it serves. The fourth floor of the Thompson Annex Building was completely rebuilt into a twelve bed facility designed to provide continuous observation and intensive care for patients with serious medical or surgical heart diseases.

Of the twelve beds seven are set together around a nurses' desk to form the medical side of the unit. The criteria for admission to the medical area are: 1) a clear diagnosis of acute myocardial infarction, 2) a syndrome requiring cardiac monitoring, and 3) a suspected myocardial infarction. In this area each patient has a completely private room to insure a peaceful environment. At the same time observation of the patient is made possible by the presence of windows facing the nurses' desk. Each room is supplied with oxygen, suction, and air as well as monitoring equipment and a bedside commode. The undersurface of the beds on the medical side are constructed of a radiolucent material so that pacing catheters or cardiac catheters for measuring pressures may be inserted under fluoroscopy while the patient remains in his bed. The bedside monitoring equipment is such that it is possible to observe the patient's electrocardiogram, his cardiac rate, his temperature, and up to three pressures at one time. The pressures that might be monitored are central venous pressure, systemic arterial pressure, left ventricular pressure, or pulmonary artery pressure. In conjunction with the bedside monitors are the "slave" monitors at the nurses' desk that duplicate the electrocardiogram, the cardiac rate, and one pressure for each patient in the unit.

Because the main philosophy governing the care of a patient with myocardial infarction is the early treatment of arrhythmias, the medical area also has an emergency stretcher which is used to bring patients to the unit. This stretcher is provided with a portable monitor for the electrocardiogram, a portable oxygen tank, an emergency drug box, and a portable defibrillator.

Before completing this discussion of the medical side of the Cardiac Care Unit it is necessary to mention the presence of a Special Studies Room. This room is equipped very similarly to a cardiac catheterization laboratory, and is utilized for the insertion of pacemaker catheters, for cardiac function or metabolic studies, or for cardiac visualization by fluoroscopy. A small laboratory has been built next to this special studies room and is capable of processing blood samples for electrolytes, blood gases, and cardiac metabolites.

On the surgical side of the unit there are five beds provided for the care of patients who have undergone operative procedures requiring cardiopulmonary bypass. Of these five beds four are enclosed in three walls with a drape on the remaining side facing the surgical nurses' desk. One surgical bed is housed in a private room. Equipment at the bedside is almost identical to that found on the medical side. The only difference is the lack of bedside commodes and the presence of a regular hospital bed as opposed to a radiolucent one.

Both areas are provided with defibrillator machines, mechanical cardiac massagers, emergency drug boxes, anesthesia intubation equipment, and respirators.

Aside from the patient care areas, the Cardiac Care Unit was thoughtfully designed to provide three lounges: the nurses' lounge, the doctors' lounge, and the visitors' lounge. It is important to point out that the doctors' lounge allows for two physicians to sleep within close call of their patients. Also, it is important to realize that the visitors' lounge is meant to be a waiting area for visitors while their relative is in the operating room, or during the time between visiting periods. The unit also.

supplies coffee to these visitors taking into consideration the principle that nursing attention must extend beyond the individual patient to his family members.

The Director of the Cardiac Care Unit has an office on the floor. As the Director is mainly responsible for the medical services, an office has also been provided for use by the surgical physicians. Finally, it only remains to note that a conference room is available for staff meetings, for classes, or for use by the physicians when talking with the patient’s family.

The physical layout and equipment are important to the operation of this unit, but the personnel play an even more significant role. Aside from the physical coverage one must consider the nursing staff, the clerical staff, the engineer, and the technicians.

Being an intensive care area the nurse to patient ratio is necessarily high. Once the nurses have completed forty hours of classes, they are able to assume the full list of responsibilities in the area. Protocols have been drawn up for the medical side that are followed by the nurse when various arrhythmias are recognized. These protocols give the nurse the right to administer intravenous medications or to deliver a defibrillation shock. Thus, it becomes clear that the orientation classes are critical to the unit and will, therefore, be offered at several times during the year.

In order for the nurse to spend more of her time at the bedside a number of assistant service co-workers attend the telephones, maintain supplies, and manage the paper work of the unit. Secondly, an engineer has been made a member of the staff with the main task of trouble shooting the machines in the area particularly the expensive monitoring equipment. Also, this individual is available for advice at the bedside a number of assistant service departments. In this way, the engineers can troubleshoot the machines in any of the two rooms. They can then enter the hospital setting.

Much planning has gone into the physical designs, administrative organization, and the description for the various levels of personnel in this Cardiac Care Unit. Yet, these many considerations are but the speckles on the shoe of the cardiac patient. Therefore, nursing even in such a sophisticated unit must never lose sight of the fact that its main concern is the patient's care.

PATIENT SERVICES DEPARTMENT

Personalizing patient care still continues to be a goal of the Thomas Jefferson University Hospital’s Patient Services Department. During the past year this goal has been far richer in practical fulfillment than even the dreams of the eschatology of the hospital bill, or the explanation of why the patient must return to the hospital for all of a certain procedure. Of course, the housekeeping and dietary staffs, as well as the staff of nurses and other doctors, continue to make numerous accounts of the varied activities channeled through its services. One can reiterate that the department’s objectives will be to continue to provide whatever help is necessary to the patient and his family. Building the confidence of the doctors, nurses, social workers, and any others who spend their working hours caring for the patient, will be a means of attaining this objective.

Elizabeth S. Stone

During these visits, she handled a wide variety of professional problems on the scene. Others were transferred newack to the desk (the head nurse, who was called the Treatment/Study area.

Needless to say, Patient Services is a most active and vital department in the hospital’s organizational picture. It’s role can be portrayed with innumerable accounts of the varied activities channeled through its services. One can reiterate that the department’s objectives will be to continue to provide whatever help is necessary to the patient and his family. Building the confidence of the doctors, nurses, social workers, and any others who spend their working hours caring for the patient, will be a means of attaining this objective.

MILDRED MYERS SMITH, '34

"WHERE COURTESY IS CONSTANT"

Thanks to the kindness of a handsome young Japanese guide, I had no difficulty getting from the heart of Tokyo, the world’s largest city, to a suburb called Uraga. My nurse’s thoughts on the two hour drive were on the hospitals, nursing homes and homes for the aged and for children which I had come to Japan to visit. How, I wondered, would I manage?

When I arrived at the i uchi (the house of my friends), I knew at once I had nothing to worry about. My very efficient host, Mr. Chihiro Kimura, had already arranged all my train trips. From the moment I left my shoes in the entrance hall, I was made most welcome by the whole family. The bedroom to which I was shown was furnished western style with wall to wall carpeting. After I had rested and unpacked, I was invited to the living room. According to traditional Japanese custom, I was given an oshibori (hot towel) to refresh myself and a cup of delicious osaka (green tea) and cookies.

Thus was the beginning of my stay in Japan where my first institutional visit on my trip was the Tokyo Rochi Home, or Tokyo Home for the Aged. It is the oldest private home for the aged in Tokyo and is run by the Lutheran Church. The homes for the aged in Japan are for people in good health. If these people become ill they are taken care of in small institutions, but for anything serious they are taken to a hospital where they can stay in the home if they are unable to care for themselves.

The Japanese are very diet conscious, so anyone on a salt poor or diabetic diet is very carefully supervised. This nurse has been presented with patients for whom the nurses (they are really called guests) sit on cushions with the usual low table for their meals. In other homes they use western style tables and chairs. Recreation is supervised with many activities such as folk dancing, brush painting and flower arrangement. Bus trips to shrines, temples and gardens are always on the agenda. Religious services are given and T.V. is a very important entertainment. There are very few private rooms. The small rooms for two people are called 639 mat rooms or about 10’ X 9’.

The 18’ X 18’ rooms are for guests. The floors are covered with tatami mats and their beds are the futon that can be folded and put in a cupboard during the day. The guests clean their own rooms and they have the usual problems when four women share a room. In some of the homes there are small stoves in the halls where they can heat water for tea for their visitors or a cup of instant Japanese soup for themselves. This costs about 10 yen per pot of water.

The hospitals I visited were from a very small one in Yokosuka, to the large Baptist Hospital in Kyoto. The wheelchairs and beds in the one hospital reminded me of the old ones at Jaffi in the thirties. The beds in all the hospitals were something to shock the imagination. The rooms themselves were antiquated, unpainted, drab looking and crowded, but all the instruments were modern. The nurses all had certificate in the medicine in powder form. These are wrapped in a digestible rice paper and taken as we would a capsule. The pharmacy for the whole day is prepared by the pharmacist and sent to the floor in plastic bags. Most of the nurses do not like this procedure because they do not know what is being given as it is only labeled with the patients name. There is some description of the material and they have much paper work to do because they have socialized medicine in Japan, and very carefully record it. This is a very respected profession in Japan that it is here, and they do not have the Degree Program in the U.S. I Nurse’s salaries are very low, and the girls going into the nursing profession have a hard time convincing parents and friends that it is a very wonderful and rewarding profession.

As you know it is a custom in Japan to remove your shoes as you enter a Japanese home, and this custom is carried out in hospitals, schools and homes for the aged. You are given slippers to wear, but I always carried my own because theirs are so wide I kept losing them.
I sponsor a blind child in an orphanage in Kumamoto, and have visited her twice. She is a very happy healthy child, and doing very well in school now that she has a mother who cares for her. Toyomi is the only blind Girl Scout in Japan.

SCHOOL NURSE VS. THE DRUG SCENE

I've very healthy age. However, she is trained to dispensing medicine, neither is she turning the child nize symptoms of a serious nature. She is not the pain is in the lower right corner of his tummy away. Her home, I think she's checking for possible appendicitis, he says "no". She sends him into the bathroom and tells him to his time. He comes out and he's fine. No pills, nature took care of this problem.

Your nurse has an extensive background in the use and misuse of drugs of all types. She has had probably at least three-months psychiatric experience in a mental institution where she spoke with and caroled for and helped treat those individuals who went too far causing permanent damage to the brain. She brought all of this knowledge with her when she accepted her position as school nurse.

In the elementary school she is most effective. These are the "molding" years. Susan S. comes into Mrs. D's office complaining of a headache. Does the nurse say, "Sorry, I can't give you any pills. Go back to your room." Of course not. The nurse has her own office. It should be a comfortable room with cheerful curtains and a carpet to give it a "homey" atmosphere. In her office a student is free to relax and talk privately. No other student need be around.

She genuinely likes children and they know it and like her too! Mrs. D. says, "Susan did you eat your breakfast?" "No, I got up late and almost missed the bus." Down to the cafeteria they go for crackers and milk and the headache is gone and — no pills! Tommy S. comes in and says, "Mrs. D. I'm sick, could I have something for my belly ache?" "Did you eat your breakfast?" "Yes." "What did you have?" He tells her and she realizes that oatmeal, toast and juice is certainly an adequate breakfast. She asks if the pain is in the lower right corner of his tummy (she's checking for possible appendicitis), he says "no". She sends him into the bathroom and tells him to take his time. He comes out and he's fine. No pills, nature took care of this problem.

The nurse realizes that a school age child is at a very healthy age. However, she is trained to recognize symptoms of a serious nature. She is not dispensing medicine, neither is she turning the child away.

The weather changed abruptly. At 1:30 P.M. it is hot, Tommy comes in, "Nurse, I've got a bad head ache." He has no fever. But it was somewhat chilly in the morning and he was on a long sleeve under- shirt and a knit sweater over top. He is overheated. Mrs. D. takes off the undershirt, put it in a bag with his name on it, tells him to wash his face with cold water and lets him talk to her a minute or two until he "cools off." Headache gone. Again, no pills!

Here comes May Ann again. She always has a problem. But Mrs. D. recognizes it now as an excuse to visit her. "I'm sick, I want to go home" and starts to cry. Usually her complaint is not so strong, Mary Ann lies on the bed and Mrs. D. calls her mother, "Oh dear, how can I come get her. I have to go to court today. You see her dad left us this summer. Can you keep her there? I'll call in about an hour. I took off work today for this." Poor Mary Ann, even though she's in third grade she knows the turmoil things are in at home. Psychologically she is probably afraid that Mommie won't come back either. The nurse reassures her that her mother will call soon to see how she is, but that she (the nurse) is there and then Mrs. D. starts talking about Mary Ann's pet cat, touches her gently and soon she forgets her illness and goes back to the classroom. Mrs. D. "clues" the teacher in — Mary Ann's sick feeling is gone — no pills!

We could go on and on citing examples. Your school nurse will explain to the students that the body is a wonderful machine and that it takes pretty good care of itself with a little use of common sense.

On the secondary level — Anita comes in — I've got to visit home. I've got cramps." Miss K. the school nurse, tells her to lie down for awhile and curl up and reassures her that mild discomfort the first day is common and no reason to feel that she will feel better at home.

Allen comes in to obtain a permission slip excusing him from gym. Noticing his obvious weight problem, Miss K. starts to question him about his reason for not wanting to participate in the gym class. After a few minutes of relaxed conversation he has a difficult time keeping up with the strenuous activity. Miss K. talks about a serious weight control plan, good eating habits and refers him to his family physician. He promises to return to her office for a weekly "weigh-in". No gym excuse — no medication!

Misty comes in, starts to talk, but stops abruptly when a classmate enters. Miss K. senses her nervous state and waits until her office is empty. She asks Misty a few "straight" questions and finds out about her pregnancy. This isn't a one visit case, but pills certainly are not the answer.

Alex sits in — "Man I got me one headache. I gotta get outa this place!" Alex is a frequent visitor to your office and often absent. Checking with the classroom teacher, Miss K. finds that he has not done his homework again and is now jeopardizing his position on the football team. Miss K. feels a home visit is necessary. After meeting with his mother she finds out his eyes bother him, although he doesn’t openly complain about it. He has failed 2 eye screening tests but so far no follow-up. Realizing that the mother is struggling to make ends meet because the father is dead, Miss K. arranges free glasses for Alex. Rx lenses — not pills!

We don’t mean to imply that all complaints are not legitimate illnesses. Many are, and these students are sent home immediately. Therefore, your school nurse is working on the drug scene daily as she helps students find the natural “cures” for their complaints.

Perhaps now you see why she dispenses neither needles nor pills but psychology and love.

TO NURSES
Here she comes all dressed in white
Walking softly through the night
Her voice is always low and sweet, her patients now are all asleep
Like a shepherd watching his flock of sheep
Blessing the babies as they take their first breath
Closing the eyes that are still in death
She is always happy and gay
Looking forward to another day.

The first program meeting this past year was held in October at the Modern Living Center, Philadelphia Electric Company, 211 South Broad Street. The members had an opportunity to tour the facilities, enjoy the lighting exhibition and acquire many helpful hints given during the cooking demonstration. The program was a huge success and many thanks to Miss Mary Anne Stauffer who was instrumental in helping to arrange this program.

At the January meeting a film entitled "Doctor, Teacher, Friend" was shown describing Project Hope's people to people medical training and treatment on four continents. The film described the work of Hope's dedicated medical personnel aboard the hospital ship in Tunisia and in the sixteen-million acre Navajo Indian reservation.

On February 2nd, 1971, the members viewed a film entitled "It Takes a Lot of Help". This film explored the numerous avenues available to groups concerned with preventing drug abuse in an in-depth analysis of a citizen-initiated program. Following the film presentation, a timely discussion on drug abuse was conducted by the members.

Due to inclement weather our guest speaker for April agreed to return in October to further discuss the topic of Drug Abuse.

The Program Committee Chairman wishes to extend a sincere thank you to all members and guests who have participated in the monthly programs.

SCHOLARSHIP REPORT

The Clara Melville Scholarship Fund awards two $500 scholarships annually. All other things being equal, the applicant who has been most active in the Association and who has most nearly completed the degree requirements is given preference.

Closing dates for applications are April for those desiring to use the scholarship in the Fall or Winter semester, and September 1 for those desiring to use the scholarship in the Spring semester.

The committee reviewed three applications for awards to be granted in the Spring semester of 1971. The award was offered to Betty Lou Simonson Woods, Class of 1961. Mrs. Woods could not accept the award because it was necessary for her to change her plans in relation to full time attendance at school.

The procedure for utilization of the Adele Lewis Scholarship Fund was discussed and recommendations were submitted to the Alumnae Association for their approval. The purpose of this fund is to assist a student to pursue her course in the diploma program. The fund, at present, is not adequately funded to initiate the granting of awards. With the contributions received for this purpose through Annual giving, it may be possible to start using the fund by 1972. We are all grateful and most appreciative of the members' support of this most worthy cause.

Doris E. Bowman, Chairman
Scholarship Committee

BULLETIN

In order to survive, changes are necessary and changes have been made and are being made at "Jeff". You already have noted the change in the size of the "Bulletin", also the name of our alumnae association; more changes are to be noted in the revised by-laws.

The Bulletin primarily is made up of articles, reports and news about and by graduates. The articles in our 1971 issue include an up to date report of the University in general, the School of Nursing, the School of Practical Nursing, the new Cardiac Care Unit, and Patient Services.

Our President encourages better attendance at our meetings, the Secretary gives us a comprehensive resume' of alumnae activities, and the Treasurer reports a cash balance! Most of the members of the committees have had a busy year and we appreciate their reports.

We are proud to print articles and news from graduates — including the Class of 1911 and 1970. Again — we welcome participation of the student nurses and have published the names and addresses of the June 1971 Graduation Class.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

COLLEGE OF ALLIED HEALTH SCIENCES

THOMAS JEFFERSON UNIVERSITY STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Student Council decided that the 1970-71 year would be a year to change tradition starting with a Student Faculty Swim-In, in place of the traditional picnic, to welcome the new freshman class. Students enjoyed swimming at the Commons and later returned to the residence for pizza and soda.

Fund raising was an important item on the council's agenda this year. Doughnut sales were held on the first floor of the Foerdorfer Pavilion at various times throughout the year. Secondly, Christmas cards turned out to be a successful means of raising funds. Next, milk and cake sales were held in the residence at night for the girls. Lastly, a raffle for a donated wrist watch was successful in providing funds for the latter half of the year.

The school paper, Caps 'N Capes, under the leadership of Miss Jane Lease (a senior) published three editions.

The Halloween party was a complete surprise to most of the students this year. It was announced that the girls must make a costume and be in the basement for games and refreshments two hours before the party. Many students were present, and we were glad to see a few housemothers participate.

Christmas activities included a caroling party held in the residence lounge with refreshments and a semi-formal dance held in the Commons. The couples danced to a rock band and enjoyed a midnight buffet. Once again the residence was beautifully decorated with a Christmas tree and flowers by the School of Nursing Department of the Women's Board. Also, the Student Council, with the help of the hospital fire marshal, sponsored a window decorating contest. A French fashion designer and a well known art dealer from Philadelphia judged the windows. Prizes consisted of cash, pocketbooks and perfume. The project was successful and added a touch of festivity to the residence.

Students decided to continue the traditional "Cupid Capers" party for Valentine's Day. Throughout the week, girls were given small gifts or clues of identity to her caper. At the end of the week, a party is held to learn the identity of the cupids.

The new school ring was received by many students this year. The ring is a medium size 10K gold ring with a black onyx stone. Engraved in the stone is the Thomas Jefferson University seal which adds to the attractiveness of the ring.

Throughout the year the council has sponsored several Indian children through the Lutheran Social Service in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Our present orphan is a three year old Indian girl named Eva. Services of Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, and his wife. This year the chorus caroled in the hospital at Christmas and performed a concert in McClellan Hall. They also sing at graduation exercises held at the Sheraton Hotel. The school is very proud of the fine ability of the chorus and advisors.

Students were represented on the Commons Board and Social Committee this year. Also one student was represented on the planning committee this year. Also one student was represented on the planning committee for the new addition to Thomas Jefferson Hospital.

Open House was our last social event of the year. Parents and friends visited the residence from 3 P.M. to 7 P.M. Everyone that participated enjoyed themselves and would like to have the open house several times throughout the year.

Jane Senderling, Student Council President

CLASS OF 1971

The Senior Class of 1971 is eagerly anticipating our June graduation.

Approximately thirty-six of the fifty-six graduating seniors plan to stay at Jefferson as staff nurses. Seven girls will attend college full-time in the fall and many others will be continuing their education on a part-time basis. Jeannette Steinbagen will begin the New Mexico as a pre-medical student in September 1971.

Basic training in the U.S. Army will start shortly after graduation for Susan Graham and Christine Stack.

We are proud of the thirteen senior members of our basketball team who led Jefferson to the Championship in the annual tournament which involved six other nursing schools in the Philadelphia area.

Although we are all looking forward to graduation, we will fondly remember our happy experiences, our friends, and all those who helped to make these past three years very rewarding.
