Coming Soon! First Friday Writing Retreats Return

The OPWPC's virtual First Friday Writing Retreats return starting October 6. Retreats will run from 9 AM to 4 PM and give you the chance to focus on your writing projects at any stage of the process. Work independently, get feedback from a member of the OPWPC team, or consult a Scott librarian. Sometimes all you need is dedicated time, so take advantage of this opportunity. Drop in at any time or stay for the full day—and be sure to register in advance here.

Creative Writing Opportunity Coming

The OPWPC is once again collaborating with the Eakins Writing Council for this year's Yeo Writing Prize and Evanescent journal. We are very excited about this year's theme, so stay tuned for next month's Word from the Writing Team with information on the theme and on where and how to submit. Please stop by Scott Memorial Library or Gutman Library for copies of the recently released 2023 issue.

Congratulations to Pamela Talero Cabrejo, Susan Coppola, and Amy Lorino on their paper "Occupational Experiences of Medication Management Among Adults Living With Multiple Chronic Conditions," published in the Occupational Therapy Journal of Research on May 10, 2023.

REMINDERS

Referencing Thomas Jefferson University in Manuscripts

As a quick reminder, when you are writing about Thomas Jefferson University in scholarly work, the University's branding style is to use "Thomas Jefferson University" for the first reference and "Jefferson" thereafter. Do not use "TJU," "Jefferson University," "Jeff," etc. Check out the Brand Central tab on MyJeffHub for answers to other questions about the Jefferson brand.

Library Resources

The library is an excellent resource for students, but it offers faculty, staff, and other members of the Jefferson community the opportunity to check out materials, too. In addition to getting assistance with research, teaching and learning, and publication, take advantage of the numerous print copies of books, magazines, graphic books, and other resources available to you.

Scott Memorial Library renovations

The fourth floor of Scott Memorial Library remains closed for the foreseeable future while the Archives are undergoing an exciting renovation. Stay tuned for more news on that closer to the new year.
