DOCTOR OF LETTERS—WILLIAM POTTER WEAR

William Potter Wear was born in St. Louis, Missouri, and was educated at Chestnut Hill Academy and at Yale University, also receiving Certification in Naval Architecture from Temple University.

He has served successively, and with unusual distinction, with Drexel and Company, Cassatt and Company, and as publisher of The Jenkintown Times Chronicle, the key newspaper of a large group. He continues as a director of Vision, Inc., of Cambridge Scientific Industries, and of F. G. Okie, Inc. He is a member of The Advisory Board of the Girard Trust Bank. He served his country in the Second World War as Commander in the United States Navy.

Mr. Wear is an outstanding public spirited citizen and civic leader, contributing guidance in many phases of government, in charitable organizations, in ecology and conservation, and in various agricultural and animal husbandry activities. In addition, he is an enthusiastic amateur athlete and sportsman.

Throughout his life his concern has deepened in matters of education and educational opportunities for all, including that for the handicapped. He has served on the Pennsylvania Employment Board in the Department of Public Assistance, and as its Chairman.

Joining the Board of Trustees of The Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia in 1941, Mr. Wear is carrying on his family's tradition of distinguished leadership and loyalty to our Institution, now totaling 75 years. He was preceded by Trustee and President William Potter, by Trustee Joseph W. Wear, and by Mrs. Joseph W. Wear who presided over the Women's Board of the Hospital.

Jefferson's long history and tradition of excellence is now gaining new dimensions and broader horizons. Mr. Wear stands as a major force, especially through his membership on the College Committee of the Board, in achieving this new image and direction.

DOCTOR OF LAWS—JOHN H. GIBBON, JR.

John H. Gibbon, Jr. was born in Philadelphia in 1903. A fifth generation physician and third generation Jeffersonian, he pursued his undergraduate education at Princeton University where he received a Bachelor of Arts in 1923. Four years later he graduated from The Jefferson Medical College where his father, John H. Gibbon, Sr., M.D., was Professor of Surgery.

Doctor Gibbon, Jr. interned at the Pennsylvania Hospital and then served several terms ('30-'31; '34-'35) as a Research Fellow in Surgery at the Harvard Medical School. It was during his stay at Harvard that the idea of a heart-lung machine was conceived following an all-night vigil with a critically ill patient.

Doctor Gibbon also served as a Fellow in Medicine ('30-'34) and a Harrison Fellow in Surgical Research ('36-'42) at the University of Pennsylvania. He entered the United States Army Medical Corps in 1942 and was discharged as a Lieutenant Colonel in 1946. He then was invited to return to his alma mater and was appointed Professor of Surgery and Director of Surgical Research at the Jefferson Medical College. In 1956 he was elected the Samuel D. Gross Professor of Surgery and Head of the Department. Professor Gibbon retired in 1967 and is at present the Samuel D. Gross Professor of Surgery Emeritus.

During his years as a Research Fellow at the University of Pennsylvania and his early years at Jefferson, he and his associates worked diligently and oftentimes discouragingly on the heart-lung apparatus. However, their efforts were rewarded in May of 1953 when they performed the first successful open heart operation using his machine on a human patient at the Jefferson Medical College Hospital. This pioneering effort made possible the development of modern heart surgery—a singular achievement in the care of the sick.

In addition to his major interest in cardiac surgery, Doctor Gibbon is a recognized authority in the diagnosis and surgical management of lung cancer.

Professor Gibbon is a member of innumerable academic and professional societies, and has served as President of the American Surgical Association, the Society of Clinical Surgery, the American Association for Thoracic Surgery, the Pennsylvania Association for Thoracic Surgery, the Society for Vascular Surgery, and the College of Physicians of Philadelphia. In addition, he has been made an Honorary Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England and the Society of Thoracic Surgeons of Great Britain and Ireland.

He is the recipient of countless awards and distinctions in appreciation and recognition of his contribution and achievement in surgery. Among these are the 1968 Albert Lasker Award for Clinical Medical Research, the Philadelphia Award, the John Scott Award from the City of Philadelphia, the Distinguished Service Award from the International Society of Surgery, the Strittmatter Award from the Philadelphia County Medical Society, and the Distinguished Service Award from the Pennsylvania Medical Society. He has received an honorary Doctor of Science from his alma mater, Princeton University, as well as the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Buffalo, and Dickinson College. He has also been honored by the University of Toronto, St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia, and Tulane University.

Doctor Gibbon is married to the former Mary Hopkinson. They have four children and seven grandchildren.

In recognition of his academic attainments, his administrative acumen, his leadership in educational affairs in Pennsylvania, and as a public spirited citizen, The Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia is pleased today to bestow upon Doctor Frederick K. Miller, the honor of the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

THE ACADEMIC COSTUME

The wearing of academic dress dates back to the early days of the oldest universities in the world. In the American Council on Education's book entitled "American Universities and Colleges" it is suggested that "Gowns may have been counted necessary for warmth in the unheated buildings frequented by medieval scholars. Hoods seem to have served to cover the tonsured head . . ."

Throughout the years European universities have continued to show great diversity in their academic dress. American universities, on the other hand, when they decided to adopt academic dress about fifty years ago, immediately established a code of regulations which today is followed by almost all American institutions. The establishment of this code has made it possible to distinguish the Bachelors, Masters, and Doctors and at the same time recognize the university which has given them the degree.

The Bachelor's gown has pointed sleeves and is worn closed. The Master's gown has oblong sleeves, open at the wrist. The rear part of its oblong shape is square cut and the front part has an arc cut away, and is worn open or closed. The Doctor's gown has bell-shaped sleeves. It is worn opened or closed. Cotton poplin or similar material is used for the Bachelor's and Master's degrees, and rayon or silk ribbed material is used for the Doctor's degree.

The hoods vary in length: 48 inches for the Doctor's degree, 42 inches for the Master's, and 36 inches for the Bachelor's. All hoods are lined in silk in the academic color or colors of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the colors are shown in divisions using chevrons. The binding or edge of the hood is usually made of velvet in the color designating the subject in which the degree was granted.

Black mortarboards are worn for all degrees.

Some of the colors in the bindings of the hoods are:

white	- - - - -	Arts and Letters
lilac	- - - - -	Dentistry
light blue	- - - - -	Education
green	- - - - -	Medicine
apricot	- - - - -	Nursing
olive green	- - - - -	Pharmacy
dark blue	- - - - -	Philosophy
salmon pink	- - - - -	Public Health
golden yellow	- - - - -	Science

The colors of the linings of the hoods for some Philadelphia medical institutions are:

red and blue	- - - - -	University of Pennsylvania
blue and white	- - - - -	Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science
black and blue	- - - - -	Jefferson Medical College
blue and gold	- - - - -	Hahnemann Medical College
silver gray and scarlet	- - - - -	Woman's Medical College
