ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

1838-9.

The professors of Jefferson Medical College have been in the habit of communicating, annually, to the profession its progress and actual condition. On the present occasion, they have to announce some essential changes in its organisation and arrangements. It was incorporated in the year 1826, by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as "the Medical Department of Jefferson College at Canonsburg." Ten additional trustees, residing in the city or county of Philadelphia, were appointed for its immediate government. It was endowed with the power of conferring degrees in medicine, and the general privileges of other medical institutions in the United States. But though it is gratefully acknowledged, that the president and trustees at Canonsburg extended to the medical department at Philadelphia every comity and facility, yet its remoteness from the mother institution unavoidably gave an opening to misapprehensions and inconveniences, which rendered it desirable that it should be detached. An application for this purpose accordingly having been made to the legislature during the last session (1837-8), an act was passed giving to it an independent charter, under the title of "Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia;" increasing the number of trustees to fifteen; and conferring upon the institution "the same powers and restrictions as the University of Pennsylvania."

Immediately after the passage of this act, the Board of Trustees proceeded with promptitude and zeal to reorganise the college under the new charter. The Reverend Ashbel Green, D. D., was elected president, and the Hon. Judge King secretary. The following additional trustees were appointed:—Hon. John R. Jones, Hon. Jesse R. Burden, Col. Samuel Miller, Alderman John R. Vogdes, and J. B. Smith, Esq. The faculty as it before existed was then unanimously reappointed. Anxious to increase the efficiency and to promote the welfare of the college, the Board of Trustees is now engaged in making extensive and important alterations in the building, according to the plans of an able architect. The whole interior arrangement will be altered; a new laboratory added; and the lecture-rooms, particularly the lower, remodeled and enlarged, so as to be rendered at the same time commodious and elegant. New arrangements will also be made for heating and ventilating the building by flues and lighting it with gas. The exterior will be essentially improved in its appearance, and its convenience enhanced by a handsome and spacious entrance from Tenth street.

With the purpose of increasing the facilities of medical education, the professors several years since extended their course of lectures from four months to five, beginning on the 1st of October, (instead of the 1st of November,) and continuing until the 1st of March. Aware, however, that unavoidable delays may arise, where so many artisans are to be employed, they are unwilling to expose the students to the hazard of these contingent inconveniences, without notice. They therefore think it advisable to postpone the usual October course for the ensuing session; but lectures will be delivered, and the dissecting-room kept open as early in the month as is practicable.—The regular course of lectures will begin on the first Monday of November.

The facilities for medical education which Philadelphia presents, and the general advantages and regulations of Jefferson Medical College, are so well known that it will be only necessary to refer briefly to these subjects. The students of the college will have the privilege of receiving clinical instruction and seeing surgical operations at the Pennsylvania Hospital and the Philadelphia Hospital (Blockley),* and obtaining books from the valuable medical libraries attached to both these extensive establishments. They will also have an opportunity of seeing the practice, and the more advanced students of having under their own care obstetrical and other cases in the dispensary of the college. The students of the college will likewise have free access to the museum, which is amply stored with normal and morbid preparations; drawings and plates illustrative of human and comparative anatomy; spurious and genuine specimens of the materia medica; a mineralogical collection, &c.

* Their colleague, Professor Duglison, has been recently appointed one of the physicians of this institution.

REGULATION.

The fee for admission to each course of lectures is fifteen dollars.

REQUISITES FOR GRADUATION.

1. The candidate must have attended two full courses of lectures in some respectable medical school; one of which, at least, must have been in Jefferson Medical College.

2. He must have studied medicine three years (courses of lectures included) under the direction of a respectable medical practitioner.

3. He must exhibit to the faculty at his examination satisfactory evidence of his professional acquirements.

That the Medical Department of the Jefferson College be and hereby is created a separate and independent body corporate, under the name, style, and title of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, with the same powers and restrictions as the University of Pennsylvania.

The present additional trustees chosen in pursuance of an act entitled, "An act supplementary to the act entitled an act for the establishment of a college at Canonsburgh, in the county of Washington, in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania," passed the 7th day of April, 1826, to be trustees of the college created by this section with power to increase their number to fifteen.
