For Cygan Clan, Raising Funds Honors Sister and Strengthens Family Ties

Follow this and additional works at: https://jdc.jefferson.edu/jss

Let us know how access to this document benefits you

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://jdc.jefferson.edu/jss/vol11/iss2/8

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Jefferson Digital Commons. The Jefferson Digital Commons is a service of Thomas Jefferson University's Center for Teaching and Learning (CTL). The Commons is a showcase for Jefferson books and journals, peer-reviewed scholarly publications, unique historical collections from the University archives, and teaching tools. The Jefferson Digital Commons allows researchers and interested readers anywhere in the world to learn about and keep up to date with Jefferson scholarship. This article has been accepted for inclusion in Jefferson Surgical Solutions by an authorized administrator of the Jefferson Digital Commons. For more information, please contact: JeffersonDigitalCommons@jefferson.edu.
For Cygan Clan, Raising Funds Honors Sister and Strengthens Family Ties

On May 21, 2016, 250 participants and 70 volunteers came together for the second Amy’s Ride/Run/Walk, which raises money for pancreatic cancer research in honor of Amy Cygan Spier. One of 11 siblings, Amy was just 54 years old when she succumbed to pancreatic cancer in November 2014. For the brothers and sisters she left behind, the event is a labor of love.

The idea for a fundraiser began to take shape after the Cygans learned how comparatively little money is devoted to pancreatic cancer research. With a number of cyclists in the family, a bike ride seemed like a logical choice. Given Amy’s great love for family, they wanted to include a walk, as well, making the event family friendly. Since then, they’ve planned and executed two successful events in Quakertown Memorial Park—raising more than $54,000 for researchers in the Jefferson Department of Surgery.

As one brother, Mike Cygan, explains, half of the siblings are either business owners or project managers, making their skills a natural fit for planning the event. To pull it all off, the siblings convened for biweekly and then weekly planning calls, and use online tools to collaborate from multiple locations. Mike adds that while the events have been successful in raising money for the cause, the process of supporting Amy—both during and after her battle—has had another benefit, bringing the Cygan siblings closer.

“As the oldest sibling, I have to admit that in the younger side of the family, I didn’t know my siblings as adults until now,” says Mike. “I’ve learned a lot about them over the past few years.” Amy’s sister, Celeste Cygan Vaughs, agrees, and notes that community support has been another blessing: “I’ve been pleasantly surprised by the generosity of people we know—in terms of time and money. It’s amazing.”

The Cygans believe that generosity also extends to the Jefferson clinicians, including Harish Lava, MD, who was Amy’s surgeon, and Ashwin R. Sama, MD, who served as her medical oncologist.

“All of us individually got to know some of the staff through Amy’s battle,” explains another brother, Tony Cygan. “It’s just an incredible bunch of folks and an incredible program. They’ve supported us with this initiative and been terrific.”

The event has been especially meaningful to Mike’s next-door neighbor, Nancy Parry, whose husband, Al, was also a pancreatic cancer patient at Jefferson.

“When I arrive at the event and see Al’s oncologist and nurse and surgeon, I don’t have to go over to them and say, ‘Hi, do you remember me?’ They come and seek me out and greet me with bear hugs and inquire about how I’m doing,” says Nancy. “I’m overwhelmed by that.”

Planning for the third event—scheduled for Saturday, May 20, 2017—is already underway. The Cygans encourage everyone to participate. After all, this is a family that’s big in number, support, and in love.

For more information about the Cygans’ event, please visit: AmysRideRunWalk.com. To learn more about supporting pancreatic cancer research, please visit advancement.jefferson.edu or contact Lara Goldstein, MBA, in the Office of Institutional Advancement at 215-955-8797 or lara.goldstein@jefferson.edu.

Amy Cygan Spier (shown with her grandson) is survived by ten siblings who are currently planning the third annual Amy’s Ride/Run/Walk Against Pancreatic Cancer on May 20, 2017, to raise funds.