The Art of Medicine

Thoai Tran, MD, Resident Department of Internal Medicine 1999-2002

The painting of the canvas does require creativity, a motivation fully inspired, to animate life from empty void of space worth a thousand words, if just a trace.
To paint the mind with passion and ideas, Cultivating the heart with wisdom so clear, a true teacher brings colors to the soul into your heart all his lessons shall go, a memorized fact anybody can surely depart but teaching medicine is more like an art, With passion to blossom a developing mind and let it bloom, becoming one of a kind.

such is the way of teachers to truly care, helping others when nobody else shall dare A healer of the soul in those tragic hours empathy and compassion; not an ivory tower of academic prestige, that research volume - when to the patients he shall never come.
Within the timeless art we now recognize our teachers who have richened our lives.
Remember no single plaque can ever show our appreciation to those we will know: teachers, healers, colleagues, and friends let the art.
