CLOSELY interwoven with the history of the Jefferson Medical College Hospital is the growth of the School of Nursing. This splendid organization has been developing over a period of a half century and now stands as one of the unique institutions of its kind in America. Its graduates are to be found in thirty-five states of the union, four insular possessions, and twelve foreign countries, filling positions of leadership and responsibility. Throughout the world Jefferson physicians are working elbow to elbow with alumnae in the operating rooms, in the wards, and in the management of hospitals. We feel, therefore, that Jefferson graduates will be interested to review the history and the rapid development of this important department of their hospital.

The School was founded in 1891, prior to which time there were only a few nurses employed in the Jefferson Hospital, and they were graduates of other institutions. Much of the nursing was done in the home by the physicians themselves or by physicians’ assistants—who spent several days to a week in constant attendance at the bedside of patients. All such patients were sent home in their carriages after operation, unless the operation was a very serious one.

In this earlier day, before the founding of the Training School, the care of patients who remained in the Hospital was assigned to women. A few male nurses were employed too, but they were uniformly unsatisfactory. The directions of the physicians were often mistaken because of ignorance. Few nurses had even the slightest knowledge of drugs, or of the symptoms and signs of any physical change in the patient, such as hemorrhage and shock, etc. There was no real sense of responsibility, no understanding of the dignity of the nurses’ calling, and very little realization of the needs of ill patients.

During this trying period patients were often burned with hot poultices. Male patients sometimes lay for hours with retention of urine, the physician not having been notified and the symptoms of retention being regarded by the nurse as a mere irritation and obstinancy on the part of the patient. Intra-abdominal hemorrhage occurring after operation would often be missed until it was too late to save life. The pulse was taken but little was known as to the significance of rapidity, weakening, tension, irregularity, etc. It was always necessary to detail a clinical assistant to sit by the patient’s bedside during the emergence from ether in order to be certain that the patient was turned properly during attacks of vomiting. The dressing of bed-sores was seldom carried out with the necessary care and regularity. So limited was the training that no nurse was permitted to prepare or handle instruments for or during an operation, and the same applied to the gauze dressings.

The change to professional nursing began in the Jefferson Medical College Hospital in 1891; only a few candidates were entered on probation. Most of the old nurses were retained for a time. The old nurses and the moderns disagreed and quarreled and many was the turmoil which had to be quelled. In spite of the modest beginning there were members of the staff who opposed the entire move with bitterness, and regarded it as the first step toward chaos and the destruction of the hospital. It was considered a new-fangled notion, fraught with many possibilities for evil, an English idea, an invention of a fanatic. This spirit lasted only a few months; soon the physicians changed their minds, and in a year or two all had become advocates of the trained nurse.

The first year of graduation in 1893 saw five nurses receive their diplomas. Shortly after this the course was changed to a three-year term, and has so remained. A total of thirteen hundred and nineteen nurses have graduated since the founding of the school and the yearly classes now average fifty or more students.

There have been five Directresses of Nurses: Miss Ella Benson, 1891-1893; Miss Effie Darling, 1893-1894; Miss Susan Hearle, 1894-1908; Miss Anna McLaughlin, 1908-1915; Miss Clara Melville, 1915 until her death on March 18, 1937.

The Training School was closely affiliated with the Medical College Hospital and entered with the physicians into the Spanish American War and the World War. In the Spanish American War, when the mortality of the American troops was high due to typhoid fever and inadequately trained personnel, the City of Philadelphia sent Jefferson nurses to Florida who gave their services to the care of the sick and injured. In the World War a Jefferson Hospital unit was formed, known as U. S. Army Base Hospital No. 38. Dr. Coplin assumed charge of the unit and asked Miss Clara Melville, Directress of Nurses, to secure the nursing personnel. This consisted of sixty-five nurses and six civilian employees—the necessary nursing staff of a five-hundred bed hospital. The unit was sent overseas and stationed at The Grand Blatterau, Nantes, France. Their excellent work was carried on until the termination of the war.

Today the enrollment in the Training School is 230 student nurses. The graduate staff consists of 68 members. The course of instruction includes thirty-five subjects and covers the field of basic science and all the branches of practical and specialty nursing. The school itself has modern well-equipped rooms in the top three floors of the Curtis Clinic, where there are recitation rooms, laboratories of science and of dietetics, demonstration rooms of anatomy and practical nursing, reference library, and departmental offices.

The practical application of the nurses' studies is carried on in the wards of the hospital, which now provides 688 beds for the care of patients. Each nurse receives practical instruction in every branch of medical activity; this includes not only the general hospital with all of its departments, but also the maternity division and the separate hospital for diseases of the chest. In keeping with the plan of providing a complete and far reaching training for Jefferson Nurses, an affiliation with the Pennsylvania Hospital has been completed whereby the undergraduates will receive three months of training in the care of mental and nervous diseases, and in the study of psychology and psychiatry.

Pleasant atmosphere and comfortable surroundings are provided for the girls in training, at the Nurses Home, a group of buildings which are located on Spruce Street—two blocks from the hospital. A special committee from the Women's Hospital Board helps to provide for the entertainment and home life of these girls whose education and supervision are entrusted to the Jefferson Hospital.

The graduates have little difficulty in finding places for themselves in the modern medical world. One half or more of the class take positions in other hospitals or in public health work and are disseminated to all points of the compass. Of those who remain in Philadelphia some take up special nursing, others enter into various post graduate fields which are available in their home institution: laboratory technic, anesthesia, X-ray technic, special work in surgical or obstetric nursing, etc. Their training at Jefferson has given them a sturdy foundation for other fields.

Contribution of Miss Melville to the Growth of the Training School

Much of the growth of the Nurses School can be attributed to the unselfish devotion and wise guidance of Miss Clara Melville, who served as Directress from 1915 until her death March 18, 1937. She had been intimately identified for the past twenty-two years with every forward movement at Jefferson. Displaying qualities of leadership from the start of her professional career, she always inspired confidence and was unsurpassed in her ability to meet emergencies and responsibilities. The enviable reputation that the Jefferson Hospital School of Nursing has attained may be attributed very largely to her loyalty and untiring efforts.

Miss Clara Melville was a graduate of the School of Nursing of the Jefferson Medical College Hospital in 1910. Following graduation she was appointed supervisor of operating rooms of the Jefferson Hospital. She resigned to become Supervisor of the Truro Infirmary in New Orleans, La. In 1914 she returned to Jefferson Hospital as Assistant Directress of Nurses; was elected Acting Directress of Nurses February 1915, and Directress of Nurses October 1915; she held this position until her death, with the exception of a leave of absence which was granted when she was appointed Chief Nurse of the U. S. Base Hospital No. 38, Com. May 3rd, stationed at Nantes, France. She sailed from New York May 18, 1918, and remained for the duration of the World War.

Professor of Surgery

THE chair in surgery which was left vacant upon the death of Edward J. Klopp has been filled by the appointment of Dr. George P. Muller. Dr. Muller is a Philadelphia son, was educated in local schools and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1899.

He interned in the German Hospital, which is now Lankenau Hospital, serving for a period of three years. Following his internship, he began to practice in the City of Philadelphia and became associated with the University of Pennsylvania in 1902. His progress in that institution was one of rapid ascendency. Beginning as an instructor, he passed through the various grades of promotion, and in 1933 he was made Professor of Clinical Surgery.

Early in his career, Dr. Muller distinguished himself by his association with the late Professor Charles Frazier at the University of Pennsylvania, doing the pioneer and much of the experimental work of that institution in thoracic surgery and devoting a considerable amount of his time to the clinical phase of this branch.

He was one of the early writers on diseases of the vascular system and he wrote a very excellent treatise on Berger’s Disease and allied conditions.

During the World War, he served as a Major in the Medical Corps.

Dr. Muller is an associate editor of “Practice of Surgery”, edited by Dean Lewis in conjunction with J. Shelton Horsley and E. Starr Judd. He contributed to Christopher’s “Textbook of Surgery” and is the author of many original papers pertaining to clinical surgery.

Endowment for Alumni Room in the Jefferson Hospital

ALUMNI will be interested to know that arrangements are completed to secure the remaining money necessary to endow an Alumni Room in the Jefferson Medical College Hospital. This room will be available to worthy alumni whose physical condition or state of illness merits the facilities of diagnosis and the suggestions for treatment which can be made at their Alma Mater.

Of the $10,000 which is necessary to establish this benevolence, $7,377.18 is now on hand and deposited in the vaults of the Pennsylvania Company in Philadelphia. A campaign is being inaugurated to raise the remaining amount, $2,623.00, among the alumni at large. Further data in reference to this campaign will be forwarded at a later date, but in the meantime the members of the Alumni Association are requested to make such donation as is within their means to complete the principal.

Credit is given to the Endowed Bed and Benevolence Committee—the chairmanship of Michael A. Burns, and the whole hearted support of Drs. Louis H. Clerf, Thomas A. Shallow, and John W. Holmes—for its activity in bringing the subject of an endowed bed to active consideration again.

Beneath is printed a preliminary report of the Hospital Committee of the Board of Trustees, which was made May 27, 1912 and which sets forth the terms under which the endowed bed is to be made.

Report of Board of Trustees

After conference with the Hospital Committee of the Board of Trustees the Committee on Endowed Room appointed at the last annual meeting of the Alumni Association, desires to recommend that the Association continue its efforts toward the establishment of such a foundation.

Your Committee found the Board of Trustees enthusiastic and anxious to cooperate. The Trustees have established a requirement of $25,000 for the endowment of a private room in the Hospital, but in view of the fact that the contemplated benefaction will be of aid to needy Alumni of the College, the Hospital Committee of the Board has expressed a willingness to make every possible concession necessary for the furtherance of the plan. To this end the Committee proposes to reduce the requirement of endowment to $10,000, a sum which in safe, gilt-edged securities will not yield more than $450 or $500 per annum. The Hospital Committee especially desires it be understood that the adoption of this sum shall not be considered a precedent.

In consideration of the proposition acceptable to the Hospital Committee, the Alumni Association Committee on Endowed Room makes the following recommendations:

1. The Alumni Association continues its efforts to raise and deposit with the Treasurer of the College $10,000, for the endowment of a private room to be used by needy graduates of the institution.

2. Recognizing that it will probably take a number of years to secure the full amount, the Association instructs its Committee to deposit any funds collected with the Treasurer of the Jefferson Medical College, upon agreement that the principle so deposited shall remain a perpetual fund and accumulate toward $10,000 as the final sum to be raised.

3. That during the period of accumulation the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Medical College shall invest the fund deposited in such manner as shall to them seem most wise, and that the income accruing from such investment may be devoted to the care within the institution of any needy alumnus in good standing.

4. The Board of Trustees in accepting the trust agrees to admit beneficiaries of the foundation at the minimum rate in force at the time of admission.

5. It is understood that the Hospital will not admit patients suffering from alcoholism or its results, nor any contagious disease, nor any insane patient; any incurable patient may be admitted for temporary relief provided that prior to such admission provision be made for his care upon removal from the institution. Admission of any applicant and the applicant's stay in the Hospital shall be subject to the rules and regulations at that time governing the institution.

6. In order to be eligible for the benefits of this trust the application must be approved by the Alumni Committee on Endowed Room appointed by the President of the Alumni Association, and to constitute a permanent Committee of that body.

7. The Alumni Committee on Endowed Room shall consist of these members: the first appointed for one year, the second for two years, and the third for three years, thereafter the vacancies in course shall be filled by annual appointment. Should vacancies arise by death, resignation, removal from the city or otherwise, the president shall have power to make appointments to fill any unexpired term.

Jefferson Alumni Smoker at Atlantic City

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed for a Jefferson Alumni Smoker at the Ambassador Hotel in Atlantic City on Wednesday evening, June 9th, beginning at 9 o'clock. The Renaissance and Venetian rooms of this famous hostelry have been reserved for the function. They will accommodate 700 guests. The Alumni Association of the Jefferson Medical College has underwritten this function to the extent of guaranteeing an attendance of over 300, and the hotel is prepared to furnish food, beverages, and "smokes" for at least 600. Therefore, there will be no question about sufficient accommodation for the huge gathering of alumni which is expected. It is fully anticipated that this function will be the largest and the most enthusiastic that has been held during the history of our Medical College.

David B. Allman is chairman of the committee in Atlantic City, and in this capacity is ably assisted by Drs. Carrington, Davidson, Uzell, and Johnson. The Philadelphia committee is headed by Dr. Regester, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, and his fellow workers are Drs. Louis Clerf, Lewis Scheffey, James Surver, and Thaddeus L. Montgomery. These two groups are uniting in a determination to make the Smoker a complete success.

The alumni can be of the greatest assistance in consummating these plans by making early indication of their intent to be present. The tickets, which are $2.00, may be purchased now through the Alumni Office, may be secured at the Alumni Dinner in Philadelphia, and will be on sale at Atlantic City in the headquarters of the American Medical Association.

The function will begin at 9 P. M., but will continue late in the evening, and those who are attending dinners in other sections of the city can come whenever their earlier engagement is completed.

Class Reunions

IN ACCORDANCE with the custom of recent years, classes of the five year periods, i.e., 1932, 1927, 1922, 1917, etc., are planning special reunions at Commencement time. Some are to extend over the two days. Special bulletins have been sent to the editor by several of the class chairmen and these are printed below. There are many other reunions that are not herein announced. Alumni who are unfamiliar with their class plans for the day should communicate with the alumni office at the college as soon as they reach the city.

The Class of 1922 is holding a two day reunion. On Wednesday, June 2nd, following the Clinics, they will go by chartered bus to Pierre's Restaurant, 80 South 69th Street (69th and Market Streets). The luncheon will be followed by a trip to Rolling Green Golf Club, State Road, Springfield, Delaware County, where dinner will be held in the evening at seven o'clock.

The following day, after the Clinics, a regular class luncheon will be held at the Arcadia International Restaurant, Broad and Chestnut Streets.
The wives of the members of the class will attend. The afternoon will be spent at the ball game and the class will attend the Alumni banquet in a body.

The Class of 1920 will meet at the University Club on Thursday, June 3rd, for luncheon at 1 P. M.

The Class of 1917 will meet for a two day reunion. On June 2, the class luncheon will be held and a trip taken on the yacht "Jefferson." In the evening a reunion dinner has been arranged at the Down Town Club. On June 3, the day will be occupied by luncheon, golf, trapshooting, and other diversions, and finally by full attendance at the Alumni Dinner.

The Class of 1907 will hold its Class Luncheon at the Penn Athletic Club, Rittenhouse Square.

LEADERSHIP of the Alumni Association is vested in a prominent son of North Carolina, Thurman D. Kitchin, President of Wake Forest College. Dr. Kitchin received his medical degree from Jefferson in 1908.

Upon graduation he established his offices at Scotland Neck, North Carolina, and carried on the practice of general medicine for nine years. At the end of this period he was called to Wake Forest College as Professor of Physiology and Pharmacology; in 1919 he was made Dean of the Medical School; and in 1930 President of Wake Forest College.

He served as President of the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina 1928-29. He has been consulting physician of the North Carolina State Hospital since 1925, and a member of the Board of Directors of the same institution for eight years. In 1925 he was appointed by Governor McLean to study the problem of feeble-mindedness in North Carolina, at present he is a member of a commission appointed by the Governor to revise the laws of the State.

Dr. Kitchin is the author of "The Doctor and Citizenship," "Notes on Pharmacology," and of numerous other contributions to medical literature. He is a well known figure in state and national medical activities.
EDWARD J. KLOPP, 1880—1936
Professor of Surgery, 1930—1936
Portrait Presented to the College by the Class of 1937
THE grim reaper relentlessly pursues his gruesome task. His visits to Jefferson have taken many of the esteemed and beloved.

Wilfred W. Fry, whose election as President of the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Medical College took place less than two years ago, died on July 27, 1936. Mr. Fry had undertaken his office with enthusiasm, and the favorable influence of his leadership had already been noted. His death was a loss, not only to the administration of the College, but also to his many close and personal friends upon the staff.

Willis F. Manges, Professor of Roentgenology, died suddenly on November 24, 1936. He had faithfully devoted the years of his life to the department of roentgenology and had nurtured its growth from a single room located beneath the old amphitheatre, in which in 1903 he treated 500 patients, to the extensive suites in the Hospital and Curtis Clinic, in which in 1935, 13,500 patients were treated. His life encompasses the history of x-ray; he was one of the true pioneers and authorities.

Every department in the hospital called upon the services of Dr. Manges, and every clinician appreciated the high value of his experience and judgment.

In addition to his professional accomplishments, which were recognized universally, Dr. Manges was endowed with quiet dignity, high ideals, sense of humor, and a gift of companionship which made many staunch and lasting friends.

Dr. Edward J. Klopp, Professor of Surgery, devoted alumnus, capable exponent of his art, died on September 19, 1936. Dr. Klopp’s accomplishments are well known to sons at Jefferson and it is unnecessary to dwell at length upon the details of his professional career. He graduated from the College in 1906, received his surgical training under that master of surgical technic, Francis Stewart, and rose rapidly in the departments of surgery at the Jefferson and the Pennsylvania Hospitals. He was a doctor’s surgeon; many a physician and alumnus of the institution received the skillful ministrations of his hands.

Dr. Klopp was an active member of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association and gave generously of his time and his means to the welfare of the institution. His death has deprived Jefferson Men of a sincere friend, and the College of one of its most skillful physicians.

WILLIS F. MANGES
PROFESSOR OF ROENTGENOLOGY
1929–1936
PIONEER INVESTIGATOR WHO, IN HIS ALMA MATER DURING A PERIOD OF THIRTY YEARS, ADVANCED THE SCIENCE OF ROENTGENOLOGY IN DIAGNOSIS AND TREATMENT
ERECTED BY THE CLASS OF 1937
The death of Henry K. Seelaus on February 14, 1937 was a shock to many friends. By his untimely end, Jefferson was deprived of one of its most brilliant and promising young surgeons. Dr. Seelaus received his early training under that eminent surgeon, Dr. J. Chalmers Da Costa, to whom he was later a devoted and close friend. He was full of the lore of the early days in hospital history and entertained many a group with the stories thereof which have descended from generation to generation. Probably no member of the faculty was in greater demand for branch chapter meetings and clinics than Henry Seelaus, for his friends were many and far distributed.

The Alumni Bulletin announces regretfully the deaths of J. Leslie Davis and Leslie Mulford, August 1, 1936 and March 6, 1937 respectively. Dr. Davis was prominent in the field of laryngology, in which department he had served at Jefferson. Dr. Mulford had practiced medicine in Philadelphia for many years and was attached to the Department of Surgery.

Miss Lydia C. Brunner, Cashier of the College, died February 5, 1937, after an illness of one year. Miss Brunner came to Jefferson Medical College in 1897, in the capacity of Secretary to the Dean. Some time later she became Cashier, which position she held until the time of her death. She registered thousands of students during the period of her service in the Institution.

To each, to all of these,
Their several paces run,
May that strange Fate, which sends men forth,
Greet their return, "Well done."
