NURSES' ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION BULLETIN

April, 1962

Dear Fellow Alumnae,

Nursing is an ever young, ever changing profession. It must be gratifying for you to know that its growth is actually a product of your talents, your skills, your imagination, your dedication and your hard work. Think, for instance, of the influence Colonel Glenn's visit to space has already had on our profession.

The fact that our membership has shown a constant increase is gratifying. However, we can continue to grow stronger and bigger only through your active participation, using your capacity to accept and seek change to progress. Active members this year have seen a change by being able to vote for their officers by mail ballot.

Let's make '62 a year of vitally renewed interest as well as renewed membership.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

The Social Committee has had another full year in planning some very important functions.
The largest highlight of the year ’61 was our Alumnae Day on Saturday, May 7th, 1961. The Luncheon was held in the Ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel. There were 418 present. There were three nurses present who were celebrating their 50th anniversary. Corsages were given to each one.
A dinner for the graduating class of 1961 was held on Tuesday, May 16th, 1961 at the John Bartram Hotel. There were 100% in attendance. Each were given an application for membership and a copy of the By-Laws.

On Thursday, October 3rd, 1961, we had a very profitable Auction Sale, held in the Nurses Residence. Following and during the Auction Sale coffee and cookies were served. The proceeds from the Auction Sale, which was $70.00, was placed in the General Fund.

A very enjoyable Christmas Party and Buffet Supper was held at the Nurses Residence on Tuesday, December 5th, 1961. Each one received a gift from Santa Claus. Miss Mary Ann Stauffer was our jolly Santa Claus. There were 58 present.

Please make an effort to attend the Annual Alumnae Luncheon on the First Saturday in May.

The committee wishes to thank all the Alumnae members for their continued support and cooperation displayed by their attendance at these functions.

THE CLARA MELVILLE SCHOLARSHIP FUND
ANNUAL REPORT 1961

Presented to the Alumnae Association on January 9, 1962
Since 1948 when the first scholarship was awarded, a total of $4700.00 has been granted to thirteen Alumnae pursuing nursing education. During the calendar year 1961, no scholarships were awarded.
There are three applications which have been submitted in the last two months, but only one of the applicants fulfills all requirements at this time. According to the By-Laws, these applications are to be considered by the Scholarship Committee in April and recommendations made to the membership in May.
The interest received on the scholarship investment amounted to $1331.00 in 1961. The investment totals $21,000.00.

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE REPORT 1961

In March of 1961 a letter was mailed to the graduates explaining the Annual Giving Drive, and that the money received would be directed toward the Relief Fund. The response from 320 graduates and members to January 9, 1962 is as follows:

$2559.50 Relief Fund
20.00 Scholarship Fund
$2579.50 Total

Last years totals as of March 1, 1961 — $2538.00 (312 contributors) This year's drive is ahead $41.50.

COOK BOOK REPORT

Last spring a slip was enclosed in the Annual Giving Appeal letter advertising our cookbook.

Since October Approximately 200 letters were sent to members of the Womens Board, and Approximately 500 letters to the Faculty Wives: also 2500 letters were sent out to graduates of our school of nursing, 80 books were sold.

We received publicity through the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Evening Bulletin. 7 books were sold through these channels. A total of 87 books have been sold since the fall drive began. My records show that 512 books have been sold to date. The remaining books are stored in our alumnae room and the office where I work.

The printing for the above letters was done by Greathead & Woodruff and by the printing department in the hospital.

Respectfully submitted,

BULLETIN COMMITTEE

Dear Alumnae,

We wish to thank all of you for your kind responses to make the bulletin newsworthy.

Please write and let us know what you are doing.

PRIVATE DUTY NURSES' SECTION

The number of members of the Private Duty Section of the Alumnae is decreasing. Young graduates fail to join our group, either entering other fields of nursing or joining an outside registry that appears to have "greener pastures".

We will strive to continue to carry on nursing care in the true and proper Jefferson manner. A small group—kept busy—usually is much in demand, but frequently the unjust object of criticism when hospital routine is upset.

CATHERINE C. PRENDERGAST, Chairman

HOSPITAL REPORT AND NURSING SERVICE

Dear Alumnae:

Another year, more progress to report about the School of Nursing and Nursing Service. The reorganization of the Department of Nursing, authorized in 1958, has become a reality with the appointment of three new Department Heads during the past year.

Miss Doris E. Bowman occupies the position of Director of the School of Nursing, and is responsible for the student program, the students, Faculty, and the Nurses' Residence Staff. In October 1961, Miss Elizabeth Sweeney, graduate of Albtion Memorial Hospital, was appointed to the position of Director of Nursing Service. She is responsible for the graduate nurse staff and the auxiliary personnel who give patient care in all areas except the Operating Rooms. In November, Miss Mary J. Evans, graduate of Ohio State University School of Nursing, assumed her duties as Director of the Operating Rooms. In this position, she is responsible for all personnel in the Operating Rooms.

The Department of Nursing has acquired new offices and now occupies all of the space from the main corridor on the first floor of the Thompson Building back to the street separating the College and the Hospital. The Administrative Offices of the School of Nursing have been moved to the newly renovated area next to the main corridor, and Nursing Service Administration is situated in the offices formerly occupied by the two departments. The Private Duty Registry office is located on the main corridor, next to the Volunteer Service Office. The Nurses' Alumnae files are kept in this office.

This physical division of the Department has resulted in improved communications and a smoother operation.

In February 1961, the last February class to enter the School of Nursing completed its program. All of the nine graduates accepted positions on the staff and all passed their State Board Examinations with high scores. The School now accepts only one class each year.

Graduation exercises were held at the Sheraton Hotel for the February Class and for the sixty-six members of the September section. Dr. Frank Braceland, a graduate of Jefferson Medical College, and now Psychiatric-in-Chief of The Institute of Living, Hartford, Connecticut, high-lighted the occasion with an excellent address.

One hundred and three students were admitted to the School of Nursing in September 1961. The 1962 Class will add another one hundred and twenty to the enrollment, bringing the total student body to three hundred and eleven. When all new faculty positions are filled, this Class may be increased in number.

The Student Nurses' Residence continues to be a source of joy. The students have had many parties, and have invited students from other schools to participate in activities in the Residence. They, too, are impressed with the student housing accommodations. Through the interest and generosity of the Student Residence Committee of the Women's Board, the lounge has been redecorated and presents a bright new look to the decor.

The students' report of their activities will show that they are very busy young ladies with broad interests.

The Board of Trustees and the Hospital Administration have shown their keen interest in the welfare of the nursing staff which in turn promotes good patient care, by their approval of improved personnel policies. As a result, the turnover rate has decreased.

In July 1961, the United States Department of State approved our application to amend our Exchange Visitor Number to include graduate nurse education. However, because of the large number of our own graduates who wish to work on the staff, we were not able to start the program until January of this year. The first group of nurses from the Philippine Islands arrived in January to participate in our work-learn program. The second group started in March, and another will begin the program in May. The first and second groups are enrolled in the Medical-Surgical Program, and are taught by Miss Beatrice Kolaver and Miss Lorraine Roche. Five of the May section will be enrolled in classes devoted to Operating Room Techniques conducted by Miss Evans and Mrs. Mamie Polite Peace, Operating Room Supervisor.

The program is proving of mutual advantage—the Filipino nurses are benefiting from the teaching and broad clinical program provided by Jefferson, and work experience at a salary comparable to that of our staff nurses, and our staff and patients are profiting by increased nursing care hours available to the units. Another advantage to Jefferson is apparent in the kindliness of attitudes and the interest in their work that these nurses demonstrate. We are pleased with the program.

During the year 1961-1962, we participated in two refreshers programs for graduate nurses. The first, sponsored by the Southeastern Pennsylvania League for Nursing, and the Philadelphia County Medical Society, was coordinated and taught by Miss Florence Kauffman, Miss Betty Piersol and Miss Margaret Summers. Other Departments of the hospital helped with the program. The second, coordinated and taught by Miss Piersol and Miss Summers, was offered to members of the Alumnae Association. Both programs were highly successful, and brought some graduates back into active nursing. We should be pleased to conduct another program for our own graduates if enough nurses for a class might be interested.

We are sorry to report that Dr. Ellsworth R. Brownell resigned from his position as Medical Director to assume that of Administrator at the Geisinger Memorial Medical Center in Danville, Pennsylvania. Mr. Maurice P. Cofee, Jr., has been appointed to the position of Acting Director of the Hospital, replacing Dr. Brownell. We have been and are fortunate that both Dr. Brownell and Mr. Cofee are interested in and support good nursing policies and practices. The entire Department has moved forward during the past few years.

No report would be complete without informing you of still further physical changes in our hospital. In June 1961, the Barton Memorial Hospital moved to "big Jeff" and now occupies the newly renovated second floor area formerly occupied by Men's Medical and Center Wards. The former Women's Medical Ward is now an Isolation Unit of twenty beds. Also on this floor is a new student nurse classroom and Instructor-Supervisor office, and a nurses' powder room. The entire floor is bright and cheerful for both patients and staff. The Wards and Barton Committees of the Women's Board furnished the patient accommodations with modern and colorful furniture.

We are all proud of the new Jefferson and its many accomplishments and hope that each of you will want to visit us and see the changes for yourselves.

May I take this opportunity to thank those of you who have recruited for our School of Nursing and our Nursing Staff, those who have returned to work, either on a full or part-time basis, and those who have written us items of Information about our Association. May the coming year be happy and profitable for all of you.

Sincerely,
Mabel C. Provost
Assistant Director

THE STAFF NURSES' ASSOCIATION

The election of new officers for the coming year 1961-1962 was held in October with the new President Christina Rodgers, Secretary Marilyn Fritts, Jane P. Ryan Treasurer.

The monthly educational program with the able chairmanship of Miss E. Hippensteel provided the staff nurses with a series of pharmacology lectures presented by the Department of Pharmacy.

A Christmas Tea was held in the Board Room December 13, 1961 for the exchange of Christmas greetings from the Staff Nurses to the Staff physicians. All the physicians and their associates were invited. Miss Fiersol and Miss Summer helped to make it a huge success.

The new year found the nurses welcoming our new nurses from the Philippines.

Miss Sweeney spoke to the staff nurses in February and March explaining the need for an increase in membership to the American Nurses Association. She stressed the need for unity among a professional group and the opportunities which can result from a large participation.

The Staff Nurses Association at Jefferson is primarily for a closer unity of all its members to strengthen our standards and improve our care to the patient, thus having the hospital give the best nursing care available.

Christina Rodgers, President

FEDERAL NURSING SERVICE

An Annual Award was given to a member of our Alumnae for 1961 to Lieutenant Harriet H. Werley Class of 1945. Lt. Colonel Werley is Chief, Department of Nursing at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D.C. Her essay is entitled "Promoting the Research Dimension in the Practice of Nursing." The following is a summary of Miss Werley's essay through the kind permission of Colonel Robert Bitter Editor Military Medicine a monthly publication. Colonel Werley's essay was printed in the March issue of its publication.

P.S. A picture of Colonel Werley's receiving her award will be framed and hung in the Alumnae Room.

PROMOTING THE RESEARCH DIMENSION IN THE PRACTICE OF NURSING

Through The Establishment and Development of A Department of Nursing In An Institute of Research

An essay submitted for the Federal Nursing Service Award,
"Chief, Division of Nursing, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Washington, D.C.

By LIEUTENANT COLONEL HARRIET WERLEY, Army Nurse Corps"

IT IS axiomatic that progress in the professions requires that they rest soundly on the trinity of research—education—practice. This is no less true for nursing than it is for medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, engineering law, and the other professions. Thus is a point which must, and is, receiving serious attention by both medicine and nursing so that these two complimentary and "colleque" professions may progress together. Planning must assure an appropriate balance of the trinity of research—education—practice, even in the face of pressures from the following: (1) the increasing demands for nursing services because of population growth; (2) the changing role of the hospital from that of an institution solely for the care of the sick to that of a health center encompassing both the curative and preventive, or positive health, aspects; (3) the expansion of areas or fields of practice open to nurses, and (4) the concomitant need for more teachers of nursing and more graduates. It is emphasized in the research dimension that the effectiveness of nursing care and nursing services to the patient may be enhanced. And, as a noted sociologist has stated, "...we must recognize that a profession is committed to the task of enlarging the body of knowledge that it applies to the problems and troubles with which it deals. A profession not rooted in systematic knowledge is a self-contradiction, a myth rather than a reality."

Of importance at this stage of nursing's efforts to stimulate and promote research in nursing and active, knowledge interdisciplinary participation in general medical care research is the creation of situations in which potential research nurses may be placed. Only through the opportunity to function in research situations may nurses decide for themselves whether they are interested in and suited for research in the clinical practice of nursing. It is the purpose of this paper to describe in a narrative fashion the evolution and development of a Department of Nursing at the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, long known for its contributions to research in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine and allied sciences.

Frame of Reference

The concept of research in nursing is not new. In fact, the founder of modern nursing, Florence Nightingale, was a research expert and statistician of the first order. It was she who persuaded one of her influential English friends to establish the first endowed chair of statistics in a university, and reports of some of her studies, reflecting many areas of interest, are today considered classics.

Since the research dimension is the focal point of interest here, several persons' descriptions of research seem appropriate. The first two simply are: research is "the systematic investigation of problems" or "research is "a planned or systematic effort, or series of activities to answer a question." Two words contained in these two definitions are the crux of the research endeavor; these words are systematic and question. By systematic is meant that research must begin with a clearly defined problem and with definitely drawn objectives. Everyone must know precisely what the investigator proposes to study and what he or she hopes to accomplish by a study. As relates to the question, the researcher must have the question which he or she desperately wants to answer, and the question must be of the type that is researchable. The wording of the question actually gives direction to the research. One can thus introduce another element necessary to the motivating factor. This he explains by saying, "... the research worker must be desirous of learning new ideas, new points, new theories, new facts, and possess the willingness to accept burning yearning for learning and not a burning yearning for earning".

One could not be present in the Institute of Research very long without becoming aware of the implications for nursing in the numerous areas where medical and basic science research was being conducted. Why wasn’t nursing participating? Why weren’t nurses being prepared for research so they might participate more completely as members of an inter-disciplinary team of specialists? Wasn’t nursing studying its practice systematically as the other disciplines were doing? What were doctors and nurses traditionally working together in the interest of patient care, did we have to wait until 1955, or 62 years after the establishment of the Institute, before an Army Nurse Corps officer was assigned to full-time duty in the Institute itself to not only carry on her assigned department duty but also to promote possibilities of planning and developing nursing’s role in a research—education—service institution?

Nursing Research Projects Conducted or in Progress

The nursing projects pursued to date cut across four broad general types of research ranging from the simple to the complex. The types included are; simple survey, case study, comparative case analysis and experimental. The approaches, problems encountered, and progress on the four different types of projects are shared by the instrument officers of the Division to meet through the media of protocol sessions, seminars, and staff meetings thus making it possible for staff members to learn from one another. Possibly one of the greatest gains from these early research projects is the opportunity for actual participation in the research processes or vicarious learning experience as work on the various studies is shared.

The following are brief reports of the research projects which appear listed on the authorized research and development program of the Institute of Research.

1. Measures of Oral and Nasal Hygiene. This study, to test the hypothesis that cigarettes smoking, gum chewing and ingestion of hot or cold liquids do not make a significant difference in the degree of oral temperatures in febrile patients, was undertaken. The objects of the study were: (a) to describe the oral condition in acute renal failure because stomatitis is frequently complication; the assumptions on which this project was based were: (a) nursing care is therapeutic, (b) smoking is not caused by renal failure, and (c) complications frequently develop concomitantly with the symptoms of uremia. Believing that nursing care, focused on scientific principles and experimentation could prevent or alleviate the stomatitis, the study was initiated to accomplish two things: (a) to describe the oral condition in acute renal failure as seen by the nurse practitioner and (b) to identify the nursing principles of oral hygiene to be followed in this disease.

Based on criteria established for admission to the study, 11 of the 14 patients seen consistently had a significant influence on oral temperature readings. The hypothesis tested were that cigarette smoking, gum chewing and ingestion of hot or cold liquids do not make a significant difference in the degree of oral temperatures in febrile patients. The study was completed after the variance tests of significance Phyllis Verhock found that cigarette smoking and gum chewing contradict published results of previous investigators. The findings in her research may be attributed to the expermental design in which control and experimental groups were used. In studies previously done subjects were used as their own controls. Significant differences were shown in oral temperature readings of febrile patients, which may be attributed to the alteration of the experimental design. Febrile patients were used as their own controls because the existence of fever had different causes and control groups could not be designated.

2. Nursing Therapy and Procedures in the Treatment of Induced Oral Lesions and Manifestations. This is an experimental study of the effects of solution or lubricants traditionally used by nurses in giving oral care to patients with non-specific oral disease. Experimental lesions were induced by X-ray irradiation of the buccal area of guinea pigs. The local treatment procedures evaluated are glycerin, acetic acid, marble dust, hot water, oral mouth wash, normal saline and hydrogen dioxide. In addition to a local irrigation three of the four experimental lesions were treated with systemic treatment consisting of an intraperitoneal injection of streptomycin, acetic acid or a combination of the two. Eight to ten days post-irradiation the animals were sacrificed and the buccal tissue was taken for histologiexamination. Analysis of data and histological studies are not yet completed.

3. Nursing Measures Which Contribute to Development, Prevention, Care, and Treatment of Pressure Sores. A comparative case analysis method is employed in study the effectiveness of various dressing measures currently in use to prevent and the treatment of decubitus ulcers. Over a two-year period 52 patients have been included in the study. Data-collecting instruments consist of a criterion measure used to record in detail the progress of the decubitus ulcer, a nursing check-list for recording data, and a study to compare smoke, food, and color photography to illustrate progress of healing of the ulcer. Patient observations are made weekly. In order that more objective comparisons may be made, patients are divided into age groups and into gross diagnostic categories. Nursing plans of care are evaluated systematically for effectiveness of the therapeutic measures, comfort to the patient and ease of administration.

Collection of data in the clinical investigation will be continued until larger numbers of patients are included in the study. Phyllis J. Verhock reported preliminary findings of one protocol in which granulated sugar and a solution of 50% glucose were dramatically effective with 10 patients in the first year of the study.

In conjunction with the Division of Biochemistry a laboratory investigation was completed on the effects of various of solutions on mitochondrial respiration in an attempt to explain the effectiveness of glucose and albumin on decubitus ulcer healing. Other laboratory studies will be accomplished as indicated to arrive at basic principles underlying therapeutic nursing measures.

4. Identification of Principles of Nursing Care Underlying Taking Oral Temperature.

This was an attempt to test the hypothesis that cigarettes smoking, gum chewing and ingestion of hot or cold liquids do not make a significant difference in the degree of oral temperatures in febrile patients. The study was undertaken to test the hypothesis that cigarettes smoking, gum chewing and ingestion of hot or cold liquids do not make a significant difference in the degree of oral temperatures in febrile patients. The study was completed after the variance tests of significance Phyllis Verhock found that cigarette smoking and gum chewing contradict published results of previous investigators. The findings in her research may be attributed to the expermental design in which control and experimental groups were used. In studies previously done subjects were used as their own controls. Significant differences were shown in oral temperature readings of febrile patients, which may be attributed to the alteration of the experimental design. Febrile patients were used as their own controls because the existence of fever had different causes and control groups could not be designated.

On the basis of the experimental findings four principles were formulated as guides for nurse practitioners when taking oral temperatures of febrile patients.

5. Influence of Bed Bath Procedures on Skin Conditions. This is an experimental study to test the hypothesis that the use of a specific nonionic emulsifier used in giving complete or partial bed baths does not make a significant difference in the skin condition of selected patients. One-half of the body of the patient was bathed with soap and water (control). The other half of the body was bathed with a specific nonionic emulsifier and water (experimental). The double-blind approach is used to make independent observations of roughness and scaling on the experimental and control sides of the body.

Epithelium is stripped from the skin by placing cellulose tape on the lateral surface of the ankles on the control and experimental sides three times during the 21-day period of the study. The stripings are exposed to a densitometer for an objective reading of the amount of epithelium. This is an on-going study which will be continued until a larger number of patients are included.
In addition to the nursing projects described above several others are being worked on intermittently as workload and staffing permit. These projects are at various stages of the exploratory phase, or in the feasibility stage, prior to submission of project proposal for approval. The scope of these projects is broader than they are focused more specifically on nursing in the military setting or pertain to matters of military significance.

EVOLUTION AND IMPLEMENTATION OF A CLINICAL PRACTITIONER RESEARCH NURSE PROGRAM

To help move us along in matters of developing young clinical practitioners—research nurses who may strive along as full-fledged professional members of the Army Medical Service teams which are advancing practice in the military, we are looking toward initiation this fall, of a 40-week program entitled "Military Nursing Practice and Research."

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

From this small beginning, then, in a research situation unique in nursing, it is believed that a small core of research nurses will be developed to cope with research—teaching—practice responsibilities. Some of the required special preparation, obtained through experience in the Institute of Research and through this program, will enable personnel to become facile with research design and methodology. Some of the officers who demonstrate special aptitude for work and contributions in the research field may go on to universities for further graduate study. If we wish to have nursing stride along in unison with the other disciplines as progress in the medical sciences and medical practice is made, provision for personnel development through special preparation is most essential.

As discussed with us at the Nursing Research Conference in 1959 by Colonel Huber, we will gain nothing by the rounding of pseudo-investigators. He believes that by the development and achievement of one single great investigator more solid progress can be achieved through the rounding of a hundred uninspired or uninterested individuals. He stated that the foundation core of elite investigators are found and are productive. Nursing will experience difficulties in attracting young, highly motivated and dedicated nurses to research activities.

Properly prepared personnel will eventually develop operational definitions and criteria—measures needed for research in nursing care. As members of teams they will be able to contribute to the definition of problems in terms broad enough to involve the interest of the nursing discipline and in respect to the pertinent hypotheses of that discipline. They will be capable of working on the team, contributing to the over-all project and possibly at the same time be testing the hypothesis related to nursing or describing the situation in the interest of nursing. This will facilitate forward movement in the quality and amount of patient care, research, education. The Surgeon General's belief in, and support of, research as a fundamental responsibility of the Army Medical Service.

Aside from studies which members of this research nucleus will conduct independently and collaboratively with members of the other medical disciplines at their respective stations, competent research nuclei personnel will become available for assignment to the Army Medical Service research teams which frequently are sent to investigate medical problems of military significance elsewhere around the globe in peace and war. In this way nursing aspects of the problems too will be studied and new knowledge will accrue for application to both military and civilian nursing practice.

REPORT OF STUDENT COUNCIL ACTIVITIES

Phyllis S. Sutthill
President 1961-62

The following article is designated to briefly summarize the activities occurring within the Student Council of Jefferson Medical College Hospital School of Nursing for the thirty-six-two-year term of office. The present officers of Student Council are: President, Miss Sutthill; Vice President, Miss Reese; Secretary, Miss Hainer; Treasurer, Miss David; Student Nurse Association of Penna. Chairman, Miss Julius; Student Chairman, Miss Wienes; House President, Miss Kurzen.

To begin the year all freshman students were oriented to the functions of SNAP, Resident rules and regulations, and the constitution of student council by the respective head of each organization.

Miss Kurzen established an organized proctor system. This system furnished each proctor team with a mimeographed list of the various areas on each floor to be checked nightly.

The compiled list is turned in at the completion of the four week assignment.

Miss Blumberg was placed in charge of the Newspaper Club. A sum of money was donated by Student Council to aid the club in beginning a successful year. The newspaper sponsored a meeting for area one girls to the state SNAP convention held at the Pick-Roosevelt Hotel in Harrisburg. The girls participating were Miss Julius, Miss Greenwood, and Miss Collins.

Miss Sutthill attended a future student nurse rally at the Woodrow Wilson High School representing Jefferson Medical College.

In December student council in the true spirit of Christmas called upon the student body to fill baskets for the needy families. This was accomplished under the able leadership of Miss Weiss and with the assistance of the hospital Social Service.

The Newspaper Club held a very successful mixer early in December again raising funds to carry on more activity.

The student body attended and enjoyed the Christmas party given for their benefit by the faculty. It was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated by all.

The Social Committee held a mixer in January to raise funds for a spring dinner dance.

A mock SNAP convention was held at Albert Einstein Hospital in February. Five students from the freshman class participated in the talent show held at that time.

The SNAP meeting for area one was held in March in McClellan Hall of the college. Refreshments were provided in the recreation room of the residence following the meeting.

The Newspaper Club recently presented the Miss Jefferson contest held in the residence. The program was similar to the Miss America pageant. The judges were composed of faculty, staff, and student nurse members. Each contestant was judged on poise, appearance in uniform, clinical performance, scholastic aptitude and personality. The winner from the second year class was Miss Maguire. It is hoped that this contest will perpetuate annually stimulating each student to be an ideal nurse.

The student council will be presenting a minstrel, Showboat on April 12th and 13th in McClellan Hall. The organization of this show was placed in the capable hands of Miss Weiss, who has been in charge of various activities in the college. Rehearsals are being conducted tri-weekly by Miss Weiss, musical director; and Miss Wielko, show director. It is hoped that this program will be successful in creating a more complete student unity by combining the efforts of all classes.

The social committee is planning a dinner dance to be held at Kugler's on April 21st. Students attending the dinner will supply their own funds. The hospital is providing funds for the dance. There is much enthusiasm from the student body and a successful evening is expected.

The social committee will also be responsible for planning a student faculty picnic in the late spring.

Nominations will be held this month for one girl from each class to attend the National Student Nurses Association Convention in Detroit, Michigan.

The Student Council is an active organization at Jefferson and through the course of years has done much to improve student unity and to provide an opportunity for many girls to exhibit their leadership qualities. The committee is hope, as president, that this organization will continue at its high level of development and with the suceeding class be met with the same enthusiasm and building a stronger unity of students and a greater realization of its necessity for harmonious living.

We appreciate the interest and loyal support of the Jefferson Medical College Hospital School of Nursing Alumnae Association. Many of our activities would not have been possible without this interest and support.

MEDICAL WORK IN GHANA

Sister M. de Montfort Kershbaumer, R.N., (class of '48)

Daughter of Mrs. Rose Kershbaumer of Hazelton, Pa., received her R.N. from Jefferson Medical College School of Nursing in 1948. Before entering the Medical Mission Sisters whose headquarters are in Fox Chase, she was on the staff at both Jefferson Hospital and Graduate Hospital, University of Pennsylvania.
In 1954, after completing her religious training, Sister M. de Montfort was assigned to Holy Family Hospital, Berekuim, Ghana. Two hundred and fifty miles inland from the South-Atlantic-swept coast, deep in the cocoa-growing forest region, Holy Family Hospital was a real "bush" center. Its 100 beds serve the 6000 villagers of Berekuim and also the many sick and poor in the scattered surrounding villages.

Tropical medicine, daily contact with malaria, typhoid fever, illiteracy, yaws, leprosy, and parasites of many descriptions challenged Sister M. de Montfort from the start. Also, a new people and language, climate and diet, had to be met and adjusted to. In time, this all became part of everyday life, so much so that now it is the United States that presents new adjustments!

In 1960, Sister moved another 40 miles inland to join the staff of Holy Family Hospital in Techiman. Until last month, the hospital depended on water in the wet season for drinking, washing, bathing, scrubbing, as well as for supplying the operating room and pharmacy. In the dry season, three hours of back-breaking work were spent daily by a full hospital crew hauling water from the river. Under Sister M. de Montfort's supervision, last month a bore-well was drilled on the hospital grounds. Today, it is supplying 900 gallons of water an hour, ample for the needs of the hospital and staff.

Sister M. de Montfort will leave the Philadelphia area shortly for Santa Fe, New Mexico, to enroll in the School for Nurse-Midwives conducted there by the Medical Mission Sisters.

The Medical Mission Sisters staff two general hospitals and a leper colony in Ghana, as well as a chain of hospitals and medical centers in India, Pakistan, South America, and South Vietnam. The Sisters are professionally trained as doctors, nurses, pharmacists, technicians, administrators, etc. to bring modern medicine to those parts of the world where the need is greatest.

MISS LEWIS DIES: Devoted Nurse

Jefferson lost one of its most devoted, faithful, and long service nurses October 13 when Miss Adele M. Lewis, R.N., died in her Medical Center. She was 72 and had served here mostly in supervisory capacities, since 1918—except for the period 1920-24.

An alumna of the Jefferson Medical College Hospital School of Nursing, class of 1914, she served as assistant superintendent of the Millville (N.J.) Hospital, 1914-17. When the U.S.A. entered World War I, Miss Lewis joined the Jefferson Hospital Unit and served overseas as an Army Corps nurse.

When the war ended, she came back to Jefferson, and except for the period mentioned, was always in its service. On December 7, 1960, she was honored at a special retirement recognition event in the Hospital Board Room, sponsored by the Staff Nurses Organization. But this dedicated nurse could not stand the tempest of retirement and returned to Nursing, this time, in the Curtis Clinic under Miss Frances Grove, R.N.

Miss Lewis was admitted September 18 to the hospital she had served so loyally, and as one long-time friend remarked, "without any regard for time or the end of her tour."

ADELE M. LEWIS FUND

A Memorial has been established by the Jefferson Nurses Alumnae Association.

A painting with a plaque will be placed in the Nurses Residence with donations received on or before September, 1962.

Contributions may be made in care of the A.M. Lewis Memorial Fund c/o Jefferson Nurses Alumnae Association, 11th and Walnut Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
