A MESSAGE FROM SURGEON GENERAL MAGEE

NOR MARS HIS SWORD

It is with enduring pride that this salute is rendered to the men of Jefferson by one of their number on the occasion of the closing of the 117th annual session of the Medical College. Through the felicitous, the troubled, the perilous years alike—they have kept the faith.

"Nor Mars his sword, nor war's quick fire shall burn the living record of your memory".

The record has been long and honorable. Steadfastly has Jefferson Medical College advanced the frontiers of scientific knowledge and alleviated human suffering. When the clear imperative trumpet notes of war have summoned the stout-hearted to dedicate their lives to the high bidding of honor, the men of Jefferson have ridden on the blast.

For some this solemn hour in history represents the third summons to war within the short span of a lifetime; for others it is the first. More than 350 Jefferson graduates and faculty members are serving loyally in the Medical Corps of the Army at home and at outposts which girdle half the globe. Many hold commissions in the highest grades and occupy positions of great responsibility in Washington and in the field. One has the singular privilege and the high trust of The Surgeon Generalship. Enveloped by silence in far Bataan, another perhaps has followed in the footsteps of the heroic twenty-seven of the last war who contributed the fullest measure of sacrifice by giving their lives.

Others stand prepared to respond when they are called. It is particularly gratifying to signalize the reconstitution of General Hospital No. 38, The Jefferson Unit, which served so creditably at Nantes in the previous war and through which passed nearly 7,500 patients in the period of activation.

A vast expansion of the Army is in progress. The construction of hospitals to afford to each soldier the highest class professional services possessed by this country of superlative standards will soon exceed any previous effort. An immense amount of medical supplies and equipment is required annually. No pains are spared to insure to the American soldier the best of medical care without stint in cost or human effort. The nation has never placed a scale of values and prices on the life of a man in the armed forces.
Physicians will be needed, many times the number now serving under the colors. Over 30,000 accepted the challenge in the last war to minister to an Army of four million men. How many will be required for the new hosts being mustered to hold freedom's torch on high? I do not know—certainly 30,000, in the immediate future; later many more. Liberty has never been purchased at a bargain. The medical profession of these United States must and will freely assume the heavy burden. It will not be accomplished without sacrifice on the part of the physicians and the communities which they leave. This fact is keenly appreciated and every effort is being made to assure that necessity alone shall be the measure of the sacrifice.

The great difference between military medicine and civil practice is a fact of paramount importance which merits reemphasis. The Army is not a mere aggregation of civilians in uniform, but a complicated organization precisely intermeshed, welded and steeled for the supreme purposes of warfare. The increasing scope and complexity of modern warfare have defined problems peculiar to the military in the field of medicine in common with other realms of scientific knowledge, and have inevitably evolved a specialist—the military surgeon—in the Armies of every world power. The medical problems of an armed force differ from those of civil life in the exact measure that an Army is differentiated in composition and purposes from civil groups. Far more is involved than the professional care of the sick and wounded; a relatively simple matter. They encompass the establishment of standards for the selection of those physically fit for military duty; the immense examining system to effect that selection; the broad undertakings in the field of preventive medicine; the complex organization which must implement the resources of science and industry to obtain supplies, construct installations and design equipment; the operation of specialized schools; the conducting of a military training program; the compilation and collation of an enormous mass of statistical data; and the endless complexities entailed in the evacuation and continuous medical care of casualties from the forefront of the battle-line to the security of the homeland.

Before an Army itself exists, its nature and health are already partially determined by the standards of quality prescribed and the effectiveness of the selective process put into operation. Planning and devising an efficient system of selection consume months, later to be followed by the enormous labor of conducting the physical examination of millions of men.

The captains and the kings of olden days who sallied out to battle could well anticipate greater losses from the ravages of the strange invisible enemy within their ranks than from the glittering weapons of the armored hosts they faced. In contrast, the carefully constituted Armies of these times are afforded the fullest measure of protection against disease that modern scientific preventive medicine can confer. The vital, if not paramount, importance of the discoveries in man's conquest of disease has been fully recognized, as a matter of course, by the armed forces of all the world powers. No modern Army would be able to successfully carry out its mission or indeed survive for any length of time under combat conditions without protection against infectious disease. The havoc wreaked by typhoid fever during the Spanish-American war is too vivid and appalling to make necessary any elaboration in support of the contention.

Every member of the United States Army is now vaccinated against typhoid and the paratyphoid fevers, smallpox, tetanus and yellow fever. In fact, the United States Army is the first in history to put into effect universal vaccination against the much dreaded yellow fever. The Medical Department is also fully prepared to immunize troops against typhus fever, bubonic plague and cholera, should these measures be indicated.
The mission of the Medical Department is the conservation of manpower. How well is this being carried out? The great Army now mobilized has been particularly fortunate. Not only has it escaped the ravages of serious epidemics, but it has established an incredibly low death rate—the lowest in all Army history. The decrease in deaths has been so marked that it more than offset the increase due to accidents—the inevitable accompaniment of mechanization and aviation. Furthermore, the outbreak of an acute respiratory disease, chiefly influenza, anticipated by many epidemiologists in the winter season, did not occur. On the contrary, rates declined markedly as contrasted with the preceding winter. There was a 50% reduction in admissions for all rates including accident, 62% for diseases alone, and 70% for respiratory infection. The excellent health conditions enjoyed by the Army are due in some measure to fortunate circumstances; in a much greater measure to careful preparation and the enforcement of the principles of preventive medicine.

The phenomenal results obtained in the treatment of the wounded after the attack on Pearl Harbor revolutionize the concepts of war surgery. Personal letters received from military surgeons of long experience and keen judgment attest to the magnitude of the change which has occurred. Wounds healed rapidly and cleanly. Massive infection, which was the rule in World War I, was conspicuous by its absence. Less than 4% of the cases of extensive wounds, including compound fracture, became infected even to mild degree. The mortality from perforating wounds of the abdomen which previous experience had demonstrated to be 80% of all cases was practically nonexistent. Many men have already returned to duty who would otherwise be facing the prospects of long continued hospitalization. The results are attributable to efficient and rapid evacuation of wounded, the employment of drugs of the sulfonamide group, and the administration of blood plasma.

One of the most urgent and difficult problems which confronts the military surgeon is the prompt location and evacuation of wounded amidst the chaotic devastation of the battlefield. The planning, creation and operation of the vast organization required for the evacuation and professional care of the wounded is an undertaking of greatest magnitude. The soldier must be reached promptly and effective medical aid rendered him where he falls, though it be in the assault wave storming the forward slopes of the hostile lines. He becomes a responsibility of the Medical Department from this moment until he is discharged from further medical care, however long that may require.

We are confronted with grim realities. The nation has committed its fate to the sword and delivered its life into the keeping of its manpower. Upon the Medical Department of the Army and the fine professional men of the United States from which its strength is drawn, rests the heavy responsibility of maintaining that vital manpower at the peak of efficiency. To us is portioned the lot and the privilege of serving as an instrument which will shape destiny itself. Men of Jefferson, we have heard that clear call like our forefathers did before us.

"'Gainst death and all-oblivious enmity
Shall you pace forth; your praise shall still find room
Even in the eyes of all posterity".

GREETINGS FROM THE COLLEGE

To Our Alumni:

The March of Events has spared enough of us time and opportunity to gather together again at our Commencement Season. Months ago we debated the advisability of holding this meeting but decided to do so even in the face of our uncertain future. Time has proven that we acted wisely.

June 3rd, 4th and 5th of this year will go down in the history of Jefferson, just as all these days are being written into the history of our country. They are dates filled with opportunity for us to rally around our Alma Mater and give her the inspiration of our presence while she is so hard pressed to carry on in her future as she has in her glorious past.

Every man who can should come back this year; meet your buddies of the last war and encourage the young men of this, almost every one of whom will see active service all too soon.

The College has a lot to show off, and when our meetings are over you will return home with renewed assurance that Jefferson will go on forever.

Sincerely your friend,

April 16, 1942.

Wm. Harvey Perkins, M.D.,
Dean.

To the Jefferson Alumni:

The Board of Trustees throughout the year has been keenly aware of the various activities of the Alumni.

We have observed with pride and deep satisfaction, not only your accomplishments but the never-failing loyalty which you have continuously given our institution.

The results of such vital interest on your part have unquestionably inspired us to face the future of this great institution with undaunted courage and with unfailing faith.

Chairman, College Committee,
Board of Trustees, Jefferson Medical College.

THE CHARLOTTE DRAKE CARDEZA FOUNDATION

The Department of Hematology, created in 1941, through the generosity of Mrs. T. D. M. Cardeza, is well established as an integral part of the college and hospital. It has more than justified the foresight and wisdom of the benefactor.

They have recently made the following additions to their personnel and equipment.

A Tiselius electrophoresis apparatus has been installed in the college. It is possible with this instrument to see or photograph various protein fractions and to separate them for further chemical or immunological testing. It will have wide application in many fields.

The department is fortunate in securing the services of Muriel Munro, Ph.D., who has had extensive experience with this equipment.

Daniel Turner, Ph.D., an authority on sterol and protein biochemistry, has been appointed to assist Dr. Franklin Miller on various problems relating to the leukemias.

The Division of Hematology has assumed the responsibility of testing the potency of certain liver extracts for one of the nationally known drug companies.

The Transfusion-Plasma Unit, established in September 1941, has already provided more than 2500 transfusions for worthy patients of the hospital.

LIBRARY NEWS

Since the publication of the last issue of the Bulletin the following donations have been received: 232 books; 2,495 journals; 370 pamphlets.

Professor Virgil H. Moon presented to the library six books and 162 journals. Several of these periodicals were recent issues that helped to complete our files.

Through the Exchange of the Medical Library Association our library has received nine books and eighty-seven journals.

Sixty books, 1,252 journals and 218 pamphlets have been received from the Estate of the late Doctor Frederick L. Smith, 2nd. Prior to his death on January 18, 1942, Doctor Smith was the Chemist for the Tumor Clinic of the Jefferson Hospital.

The newly elected President of the Alumni Association is an exceptionally well known Jeffersonian. He was graduated with the class of 1910 and from that day he has given freely of his time and effort towards a greater Jefferson. He has been a most active member of the Alumni Association during twenty-seven of the past twenty-nine years.

Born in 1881 in Jessamine County, Kentucky, the son of Luther A. and Mary (Donohue) Davis, (direct descendants of James Wilson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and Daniel Boone, respectively), he received his early education in the county public schools. His premedical course was completed in Kentucky University. Early he was taught the meaning of hard work and this admirable quality has stayed with him through the years.

Outstanding as a student at Jefferson, he was awarded the graduation prizes in Oral Surgery, Gynecology, Obstetrics and Pediatrics and given honorable mention in Neurology and Laryngology. Following his internship in the Jefferson Hospital, he was awarded the Corinna Borden Keen Research Fellowship and entered the laboratories of Prof. Ludwig Pick of the University of Berlin. Here he produced some very original work which was published in a monograph, "The Development and Anatomy of the Nasal Accessory Sinuses in Man."

Dr. Davis returned to Philadelphia in 1913 to begin private practice and was appointed as Clinical Assistant in Surgery by Dr. J. Chalmers Da Costa. He continued his work as teacher in anatomy for many years. In 1936 he received the appointment of Clinical Professor of Oral Surgery. The large number of our graduates trained by him who have become leaders in their respective fields is ample tribute to his ability as a clinician.

During the first World War, Dr. Davis served on the Medical Advisory Board of the War Department of Pennsylvania. In 1918 as Captain in the Medical Corps of the United States Army, he was in charge of the School of Oral and Plastic Surgery in the Medical Officers' Training Camp, Camp Greenleaf, Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., serving until 1919.

He resumed practice in Philadelphia and has risen steadily until Dr. Davis is today nationally recognized as a foremost authority on problems dealing with the nasopharyngeal sinuses, harelip, cleft palate, and plastic and reconstructive surgery. He has contributed many articles to the literature upon these subjects.

He is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, Diplomate of the American Board of Otolaryngology, Former President of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, Alpha Omega Alpha fraternity and many other societies allied with his specialty.

Dr. Davis was married in 1913 to Ada Springer. There are four sons—two are lieutenants in the U. S. Army, one an interne at Jefferson Hospital, one a sophomore at Yale.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

My Fellow Alumni:

I deem it a truly great honor to have been elected your President. We have more than fifty-eight hundred loyal alumni, scattered throughout the Union and in many foreign lands, but united in devotion to our Alma Mater. I believe the chief function of the Alumni Association is to maintain and strengthen these bonds of filial devotion. I therefore ask continuance of the enthusiastic and efficient cooperation of our various chapters and state organizations in keeping our great "Jefferson Family" in the forefront of all medical and surgical progress in helping humanity.

Jefferson is justly proud of the records of her sons who served with our armed forces in the First World War, and in the present vast conflict our Alumni are responding with like patriotism for effective and proficient work. Those of Jefferson's teaching staff who are not in active Military Service will endeavor to keep the College work up to its traditional high standards.

It is hoped that as many Alumni as can arrange to be away from their duties will be present for the programs and re-unions scheduled for Commencement Week.

Dean William Harvey Perkins will speak for the faculty as well as his own office.

The Class of 1902, celebrating their Fortieth Reunion, will be represented by Dr. Thomas F. Duhigg, Lieutenant Commander, U. S. N., of New York.

The Class of 1917 has selected Dr. Paul Keller, Head of the Associated Hospital Service of New York, for their speaker, as they celebrate their Twenty-fifth Reunion.

WAR CLASS REUNION

SILVER ANNIVERSARY — CLASS OF 1917

The class of World War I expects to have a reunion this June lasting two days or longer.

The first day, Wednesday, June 3, will be taken up with clinics in the morning and a class reunion at the Mohican Club near Palmyra, New Jersey, the rest of the day.

The afternoon will be spent with various entertainment activities which will be available at the Club. In the evening there will be a class dinner for which the committee has provided a special type of entertainment. The yearbook, which is the result of a great deal of work by our publication committee, will be distributed at this dinner. There are 122 living members of the Class of 1917. 115 of these have sent in biographical material and 105 pictures of themselves which will be included in the yearbook.

On Thursday, June 4, there will be a special turnout for the Alumni Banquet. The response has been so gratifying that the Twenty-fifth Reunion of the Class of 1917 will most likely be the largest ever held.

THE ALUMNI ENDOWMENT FUND

The Alumni general endowment fund is growing steadily. Class after class is unanimous in contributory support and this should be extended.

It is to the mutual advantage of each graduate and the College that everyone add to this fund because it is the chief monetary assurance of an independent Medical School—our Alma Mater.

Since 1922 the members of each class have pledged themselves through notes as individuals to pay $210.00 over a period of 20 years.

Members of older classes and classes to come can and will swell this sum so that it will become a formidable bulwark for our future.

Alumni, it is your money; it stands in perpetuity, a monument to your sagacity and generosity. The Board of Trustees carries out your wishes as you direct them.

Let everyone help. Let every class and every graduate "turn to" for Jefferson.

John Chalmers Da Costa Exhibition

JEFFERSON MEDICAL COLLEGE LIBRARY

Mrs. J. Chalmers Da Costa has just recently presented to the College some very valuable papers belonging to her late husband. These, together with some other interesting material, including the famous Gold-Headed Cane, presented to Doctor Da Costa by the Class of 1926, will be on exhibition in the main Reading Room of the Library during Commencement Week, June 2nd to June 6th.
The annual meeting of the Alumni Association, held on February 8, 1940, is a red-letter day in the annals of the organization. At that time a long-cherished plan was brought to fruition—the establishment of a permanently endowed room in the Jefferson Hospital for the free use of worthy alumni whose financial status warrants such consideration. Collection of a $10,000 fund for this purpose was begun in 1910, and the goal was finally reached after thirty years of effort. This money was raised by the voluntary subscriptions of alumni and some friends of the college at home and abroad. During the period devoted to raising money for new college and hospital buildings and for the creation of the general Alumni Endowment Fund, little activity centered about the endowed bed fund, which therefore lagged considerably over a number of years.

The culmination of this worthy endeavor has been a source of much satisfaction to all concerned. Two years have passed since the room has been available, and during this time the help rendered to our fellow-graduates has amply proven not only the necessity for such a service but the wisdom of its establishment. The committee is sure that the alumni are eager to know more about this accomplishment and the benefits that have accrued from it. The accompanying graphs depict the attainment of the goal, and the increasing benefit available to the recipients.

The regulations governing the use of the room, and a summary of the benefits provided with it have been published several times in previous issues of the Bulletin. It was recognized at the time that the endowment was made available that the room, with its associated benefits, did not provide adequate aid in all instances. Special nursing is often necessary or desirable and obviously this could not be furnished under the terms of the agreement with the Board of Trustees. Consequently at a meeting of the Executive Committee, held on November 13, 1939, it was voted to establish a second fund of $10,000, the income of which will provide for such nursing care and for any extraordinary assistance that might be necessary. A surplus of $325.86 remaining after the completion of the first $10,000 fund furnished the nucleus for the second fund, for which subscriptions have regularly been solicited since then. To date an additional $200 has been sent in by the following alumni, increasing the amount to date to $525.86:
The desirability of securing this additional endowment should be apparent to all. With this purpose in mind the Committee sincerely urges each alumnus to give due consideration to the completion of this effort, so that no deserving graduate of Jefferson need be denied essential care in the room which your previous gifts have made possible. We appeal to your conscience and to your generosity. Subscriptions for any amount are welcome; many relatively small ones will soon swell the total, and help to raise the designated amount in a reasonably short time. What cause can be more worthy than that of aiding fellow-alumni in distress? Act promptly and hearten the Committee in its task by filling in, detaching, and mailing the appended contribution form. We want to see the thermometer soar!

LEWIS C. SCHEFFEY,
Chairman.

I enclose a contribution of $__________ to the Endowed Room and Benevolence Fund to provide special nursing care, etc., for occupants of the endowed room for Jefferson graduates.
